Article from the Somerset COMMONWEALTH - JOURNAL Tuesday, September 11, 1979

Following the Revolutionary War, many of the early Americans found their savings were gone, their homes broken and their hopes dampened. These people were predominantly Scotch, Irish, Welsh and English, who sought a new start in life.

The long hunters, frontiersmen who were accustomed to spending long continuous periods hunting in the mountains of Tennessee and Kentucky, brought word to the colonies of a new land to the west. With this incentive, pioneers quickly started the long trek westward. Some of them brought their families and meager possessions in ox carts or by pack horse, never knowing if they would safely reach their destination. After weeks of toiling over trackless mountains, through rain and cold and with the constant fear of Indians and wild animals, these hardy men and courageous women from the "backwater'' section of Virginia and the Carolinas joined the hordes that streamed through Cumberland Gap into this new land.

They came over the Wilderness Trail down to the Orchard (Crab Orchard), crossed Rockcastle River and Buck Creek into what was later to be known as "The Glades,'' of Pulaski County. As it was flat, swampy land and held no appeal for the emigrants, they pressed on, settling in various sections of land later known as Pulaski County.

Pulaski County, located in the south central section of the state, was the 27th county formed in Kentucky. It was created by an act of the General Assembly, December 10, 1798 - to begin June, 1799 - out of territory belonging to Lincoln and Green counties. The act passed by the assembly read:
"That from and after the first day of June next, all that part of the counties of Lincoln and Green, included in the following boundary, to wit -- beginning at the mouth of Rockcastle, thence up the same four miles, where reduced to a straight line, above the reserve line; thence to the dividing ridge between Skegg's Creek and Buck Creek; thence a straight line to the Round Knobs; thence south 45 degrees west to the present line between Green and Lincoln; thence to the proposed new county east line taken from Green; thence with the said line to the state line; thence along said line so far that a north line will strike the beginning, shall be one county, and called and known by the name Pulaski and all the residue of the said counties shall retain the names Lincoln and Green."
The assembly named the county in honor of Count Casimir Pulaski, a Polish patriot and brigadier general in the U. S. Army during the American Revolution.

Since the creation of Pulaski County, several changes have been made to her boundary. The first change was when Wayne County was formed and part was taken from Pulaski's territory on December 18, 1800. When Rockcastle County was created in 1810, another section was taken from it. Then on February 20, 1825, a part of Pulaski was added to Whitley. Again a part of Pulaski was added to Wayne, January 6, 1831. The last change was made when McCreary was formed from parts of Pulaski, Wayne, and Whitley.

Pulaski County today is bounded on the east by Rockcastle and Laurel counties, on the south by McCreary and Wayne, on the west by Russell and Casey and on the north by Lincoln. It lies in the foothills of the Cumberland Mountains and is drained by the Cumberland and South Fork rivers, Pitman, White Oak, Buck, Lyne, Cold Water and Fishing creeks.

When it was created, its southern boundary reached the Tennessee line. In the Thirteenth Biennial Report of the Commission of Agriculture, 1898-99, it was listed as the largest county in the state, with a length of 40 miles form north to south and 30 miles from east to west. Pulaski is now the third largest county in the state, having an area of 401,920 acres or 628 square miles.

The section of the act by the General Assembly creating the county has the following provisions for the county courts:
"The courts of Quarter Sessions for said county shall be held on the fourth Tuesday in the months July, October, January, and March in every year, and the court of said county shall be held on the fourth Tuesday in every month in which the courts of Quarter Sessions are not hereby directed to be held.

The justices to be named in the commission of the peace for said county of Pulaski, shall meet at the house of Thomas Hansford upon the first court day after the said division shall take place; and having taken the oath prescribed by law, and a sheriff begin (being) legally qualified to act, shall then proceed to fix upon a place to hold courts in said county, in such place as shall, deemed the most central and convenient to the people, and then after the county court shall proceed to erect the public buildings at such place; and until such buildings are completed the court of Quarter Sessions and county court may adjourn to such place or places as they may severally think proper.''

The first record of this county court, according to Pulaski court record. was:
"At the house of Thomas Hansford, in the county of Pulaski on Tuesday, the 25th of June, 1799, a commission of the peace from his excellency James Garrard, Esquire, governor of the commonwealth aforesaid, where upon the said Samuel Gilmore, Esq., took the oath of office and the oath to support the constitution of the United States, who, then afterward administered the said oath to the other justices.''
After the justices took oath, Samuel Newell I, took oath as first sheriff of the county, William Fox was appointed county clerk; Samuel McKee took oath as first surveyor; and Charles Neal was granted an earmark for his livestock.

"The first court of Quarter Sessions was held at the home of Henry Francis in county of Pulaski on Tuesday the 23rd day of July, 1799. A commission of the peace from his excellency, James Garrard, Esq., governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, directed to Samuel Gilmore, Joseph McAlister and John Hardgrove, appointing them justices of the court of Quarter Sessions for said county of Pulaski,'' according to Pulaski court records.

A county court held Feb. 24, 1801, entered the following minutes, which fixed the location of the county seat. ''The court having taken into consideration the business of fixing on the place for erecting the public buildings for this county, after mature deliberation it is ordered that the permanent seat of justice for this county is fixed on a tract of land containing 40 acres, this day conveyed by bond to the county court of this county on land given by William Dodson. He received it as part of a survey made July 25, 1799 on certificate number seven -- this land lying on the waters of Sinking Creek."

On February 24, 1801, William Dodson, Reubin Hill and Moses Hands made bond for $1,000 to justices for Dodson, conveying the 40 acres of land to the court on or before March 1, 1812. Dodson made bond to convey all this land except one acre on which the Sinking Creek Baptist Church stood and three lots which he retained for himself. The 40 acres were to be laid off into convenient streets and lots, Dodson getting two lots first choice, the court next, and then Dodson third choice. Also, Dodson was to have the same liberty of the use of the water as other persons.''

Somerset was selected as the name for the county seat. According to a legend, the county seat was named after Somerset, England. The 40 acres making up the town were divided into 80 lots, four of which were set aside for a public square. The plan for the town was not recorded, "owing to neglect.'' until Jan. 16, 1820. On the designated land was a spring, the town's water system. The path or street by which the spring was reached became the main street of Somerset - Spring Street (Vine Street) .

Allen Cox Botetourt VA

1765-1799, Prince George's Co Maryland, Frederick Co VA, Berkeley Co VA, Botetourt Co VA

Allen Cox Sr. of Botetourt was born about 1736, died after 1793 & before 1797 married Mary Hillyard born 1730's, died after 1773 sister of Thomas & John Hillard. [1] He is most likely the son of/or related to Allen Cocks listed in Prince George's County in 1733 Account of Taxables of Monacasie Hundred (Monocacy) with Thomas Hillyard. [2] Allen Cox bought from Solomon Hedges on 1 Aug 1765 for twelve pounds, ten shillings Maryland money 173 acres [3] on the west side of Opechon Creek on the south side of a large Run called Tullases Branch in Frederick Co that became Berkeley Co where Allen is listed in Rental Rolls in 1772, 1774 and 1777. Allen and his wife Mary sold 173 acres for £15 or 15,000 on 1 Dec 1780[4] and moved to Botetourt Co VA where he or his oldest son Allen, is listed on 31 Aug 1782 as a recruit age 18-50 (born 1732-1764) in Captain May's Co of the 55th District of Botetourt [5] and in Captain May's Company in 1783.[6]

Allen Cox purchased 112 acres [7] in Donnally Cove on Craigs Creek of James River in Botetourt Co VA for £65 dated 7 Oct 1784 witnessed by Abraham Miller, Jacob Smith (Allen's son-in-law) and George Clare (Clear) (Allen's brother-in-law). Allen is listed in Botetourt Personal Property in 1785, and on 14 May 1786 [8] an entry in Botetourt lists, "Allen Cox exempted from payment of Parish and County levies on account of his age and infirmity". He is listed as Allen Cox 1786-1793 Botetourt Personal Property Tax; 1793 is the last date that can be definitely assigned to Allen Sr. His property of 112 acres is not listed in Botetourt Land Tax [9] until 1797 when listed under his oldest son Allen and then granted to his son-in-law Jacob Smith in 1800. SQUIRE A. COX, a pioneer of Putnam County and a resident of Marion Township, was born in Pulaski County, Kentucky, January 25, 1818, son of Jacob and Frances Cox, natives of Virginia. Several of his paternal ancestors were soldiers in the Revolutionary war, and some of his maternal ancestors served in the war of 1812. He is of English-Welsh descent, his ancestors having immigrated to America prior to the Revolution, settling in Virginia. He was reared to manhood in his native county, and received a limited education in the early schools of his time. He was but two years old when his mother died, and only fifteen when his father died. He was thus early thrown upon his own resources. In the fall of 1838 he removed to this county, and for the first seven years lived in Franklin Township. He then located on section 11, Marion Township, where he has since resided, and where he owns a good farm of 127 acres. He was first married August 1, 1839, to Nancy W. Harrah, a native of Kentucky. She came to Putnam County with her parents in an early day. To this union was born one child—Currilda F., now deceased. Mrs. Cox died January 23, 1842, and March 28, 1844, Mr. Cox married Cynthia A. Vermillion, born February 14, 1823, a daughter of Isaiah and Tillitha C. Vermillion, who settled in Monroe Township, five miles north of Greencastle, in 1823. Mrs. Cox is now the oldest living native of Putnam County residing in the county. They have had three children, all of whom are deceased—Currinda, and two that died in infancy. Mr. Cox is a self-made man. All that he has he has made by economy, perseverance and good management. He has never served as a witness for or against his neighbor in a law-suit, and has never served on the grand jury. His word is considered as good as his bond. In politics he affiliates with the Republican party, but has never sought official positions. His wife is a worthy member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and both are respected members of society.

26 Apr 1999: Looking for info on Allen Cox, father of Elizabeth Cox who was born 1766 in Maryland, md Botetourt Co., VA (surety Ezekiel Cox) 11 Jan 1789 to John McGee
(M. Nolan note: they moved to Wayne Xo., KY which is adjacent to Pulaski Co., KY)

Records of Melanie Nolan:
Montgomery Co., VA , 4 Apr 1797: Jacob Cox md Franky Godby d/o John Godby. Surety John McGee
(M. Nolan note: Jacob and Franky named one of their sons James Allen)

1810 Pulaski County Kentucky Census:
Cox, Allen
1 male 10
1 male 26
1 male 45 & upwards
4 females 10
1 female 26

Assuming that the eldest male in the household would be the head of household, the male 45 & upwards could be Allen Cox who is said to be father of Elizabeth who married John McGee. It is also possible, but not proven that he is the father of Jacob Cox who married Franky Godby and whose surety was John McGee. On the other hand, if he is closer to the age of 45, it is possible that this Allen is a brother or cousin of both Elizabeth Cox and Jacob Cox. It appears that there is a younger couple living in the household with children, possibly a son of the elder man. In 1816 Allen Cox was administrator of estate of Thomas Cox who appeared to be a casualty of the War of 1812.

Cox, James
2 males 10
1 male 45
1 female 10
1 female 16
1 female 45

This is a younger man and possibly another brother or cousin of Jacob Cox and Elizabeth Cox.

1820 Pulaski County Kentucky Census
Cox, Ezekial
3 males 10 to under 16
1 male 45 & upwards
1 female under 10
1 female 10 to under 16
1 female 16 to under 25
1 female 45 & upwards

Not named on 1810 census. However, note that the surety for Elizabeth Cox and John McGee was a man named Ezekial Cox. This Ezekial is of the right age to be the same man.

CHILD 1 - Franklin William Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County, KY Historical Society Library (1940): "My grandfather, William Cox and grandmother, whose maiden name was Maria Claire, were living in Pulaski County, Kentucky, near Somerset at date of my birth, 1860. However, it is thought both were born in Virginia.They continued to live there until the year 1873, at which time, after their children were all married and scattered, and they, themselves, being considerably aged, moved to Southwest Missouri, to be near their eldest son, Marcellus; who at that time was located there on a farm, two miles southwest of Marionville, Lawrence County. They had reared a large family: Marcellus, William Perry (my father), Ballard, Jake, Sciatha,Winford, Brent, Frank and James. Grandfather had been a farmer, and a schoolteacher in Kentucky; but at that time had retired. Their remaining years were spent in a small cottage almost at the door of their son; they were well cared for to the close of life; both aged more than three score and ten years. Both were interred in the Grammer Cemetery near Marionville. During their later years, our family was located on a farm nearby. Grandmother's brother, Daniel Claire, and family, Aunt Maria, and son, Frank, lived only a short distance from them. Grandfather Cox, at that time, had two brothers; Jake and

HUSBAND - Franklin William Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County, KY Historical Society Library (1940): "Mygrandfather, William Cox and grandmother, whose maiden name was Maria Claire, were living in Pulaski County, Kentucky, near Somerset at date of my birth, 1860. However, it is thought both were born in Virginia.They continued to live there until the year 1873, at which time, after their children were all married and scattered, and they, themselves ,being considerably aged, moved to Southwest Missouri, to be near their eldest son, Marcellus; who at that time was located there on a farm, two miles southwest of Marionville, Lawrence County. They had reared a large family: Marcellus, William Perry (my father), Ballard, Jake, Sciatha,Winford, Brent, Frank and James. Grandfather had been a farmer, and aschoolteacher in Kentucky; but at that time had retired. Their remaining years were spent in a small cottage almost at the door of their son; they were well cared for to the close of life; both aged more than three score and ten years. Both were interred in the Grammer Cemetery near Marionville. During their later years, our family was located on a farm nearby. Grandmother's brother, Daniel Claire, and family, Aunt Maria, and son, Frank, lived only a short distance from them. Grandfather Cox, at that time, had two brothers; Jake and Squire, living in Indiana."

Birth and Death: Gravestones in Grammer Cemetery near Marionvill,Lawrence County, MO.

Marriage: Pulaski County, KY Marriage Book 1.

WIFE - Maria Clare

Birth and Death - Gravestones in Grammer Cemetery in Marionville ,Lawrence County, MO.

Pulaski County Marriage Records - "...please to let William Cox have license to marry my daughter. Nov the 24, 1825. Thomas Clare, Test James Clare."

CHILD 1 - Frank Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox (1940): "Uncle Frank Cox, a younger brother of my father, William Perry Cox, was born in Pulaski County, Kentucky, near Somerset, and lived there near Uncle Marcellus' home, and died, early in life, year about 1860."

CHILD 2 - Marcellus Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox: "My father, William Perry Cox, married Cynthia Ann Hail, and his eldest brother, Marcellus Cox, married Susannah Hail; all of whom were residents of Pulaski County, Kentucky. Both families continued to live in Kentucky till the fall of 1863, at which time, there were five children in each family...My father and Uncle were both farmers, and hoping to find better farming so moved together from their native state in two horse, covered wagons, a distance of several hundred miles; and time spent on the road, approximately, six weeks. The two wagons were pretty well loaded with ten younsters. We passed over three states and three large rivers before reaching our goal, or destination; which was St. Charles County, in East Missouri, eighteen miles north of St. Louis, and two miles west of the Mississippi River. River bottom land there at that time was priced at one hundred dollars per acre; too high for the farmer of ordinary means to purchase. Both families rented farming land. My uncle, after a three year stay, moved from there to the " LoneStar" state, for a short sojourn of eighteen months; after which he returned to Southwest Missouri, Lawrence County, two miles southwest of Marionville; and not long thereafter, purchased a 40 acre farm, at which he lived till all his children were married and had homes of their own. Late in life, while on a visit to see his eldest daughter, Ella Cox Hazelton and family; then living near Turon, Kansas, he passed away; after only a few days illness, year 1908, aged 88 and was interred in Neola Cemetery (Kansas).

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox: "My father, William Perry Cox, married Cynthia Ann Hail, and his eldest brother, Marcellus Cox, married Susannah Hail; all of whom were residents of Pulaski County, Kentucky. Both families continued to live in Kentucky till the fall of 1863, at which time, there were five children in each family...My father and Uncle were both farmers, and hoping to find better farming so moved together from their native state in two horse, covered wagons, a distance of several hundred miles; and time spent on the road, approximately, six weeks. My father thought it best to remain in East Missouri in St.Charles County and had rented a 400 acre farm home on which there was a 50 acre orchard, also a large residence (three story), and a sufficient number of rooms to accomodate three or four families. During our last four years there, my father put in a large acreage to crops; dealt heavily in live stock; mules, cattle and hogs. However, the Mississippi River bottoms soon proved to be very unhealty. In the fall in 1866, I suffered a long serious siege of typhoid fever; the after effects ofwhich left me a life-long cripple. In 1867, my oldest brother, James Franklin, aged 13 years and 10 months, died, following a few weeks sickness of typhoid. Then, only three years thereafter, in August, 1870, my father, aged 42 years and 10 months, was stricken with fever, and he too, within a few weeks, passed away. Father and son were both interred in St. Charles Cemetery.

CHILD 4 - Ballard Cox

Birth and Relationship - "Biographical Sketches of the Cox and HailFamilies" by Henry Jefferson Cox (1940). "Uncle Ballard Cox was a younger brother of my father, and was born and reared in Pulaski County, Kentucky; date of birth 1829. He married Emily Price, daughter of Buck Price and lived there till the Civil War. He enlisted in the war at the beginning, 1861, and served in same approximately four years. He was in the Federal Army at the battle of Mill Springs, Kentucky, in which General Zollicoffer was killed; also in the George B. McClellan Peninsula Campagn, and for war service he received a life pension of $72. 00 per month. Shortly after the close of the war, he and family of 5 children moved to East Missouri, and lived there a short time. They then moved to Indiana, and lived near Terre Haute, on Wabash River. Later the family moved to Kansas; and after a few years sojoun there, all thefamily except a daughter, Barbara, moved to Southwest Missouri; and no long thereafter, Uncle Ballard purchased town property at Marionville,MO; adjoining my mother's home. Within a few years Uncle and Aunt both passed away; aged about 80 years each. They had reared a large family:Frances, Barbara, Green, Boen, Elizabeth, John, Jake and Estelle."

Marriage - Pulaski County, KY marriage records.

Death and Place of Burial - Virginia Bussey.

CHILD 5 - Jacob "Jake" Cox

Relationship - "Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox (1940): "Uncle Jake Cox was a brother of my father,William Perry Cox, and was born, 1832, and reared in Pulaski County ,Kentucky. At the age of 19, he married Sarah Starns. After the close of the Civil War, he and Aunt Sarah and their children moved to Indiana, near Terre Haute. Later, they moved by way of Southwest Missouri to Central Kansas, near Stanford, at which place he purchased a large acreage farm home there. They reared a large family: Isabel, Joel ,George, Mollie, James, Emaline, Minnie, Charles Eddie, William Leroy, Eva (Tep), and Della May.

CHILD 7 - Daniel Winford Cox

Relationship - "Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox (1940): "Uncle Winford Cox, brother of my father, William Perry Cox, was born 1840, at or near Somerset, Kentucky; and while there, when a young man, married; and to this union was born one child, Edward. Soon thereafter, they separated, and Uncle Winford, a few years later, went to Indiana, and then to Southwest Missouri; at which place he married Jennie Fitzhugh, of Lawrence County, a school-mate of my sister Mollie, and lived near us. After marriage, they lived for a few years at Wheatland, Hickory County, Missouri; then moved to Weaubleau, a nearby town, and lived there continuously until Uncle Winford's death, 1920, aged 80 years.

In 1940, Jennie was still living and was aged 80 years. She had two married daughters, Lennie and Virgie and a son, Albert. Lennie married Frank Gerber, and were living in Rolla, MO. Virgie married a Gentry and was living at Loveland, CO.

Marriage to Ann Davidson - Pulaski County, KY marriage records.

CHILD 8 - James H. Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox (1940): "Uncle James Cox, my father's brother, was born and reared in Pulaski County, Kentucky. At an early age, near the beginning of the Civil War, in 1861, he enlisted for service; and was wounded in a battle at Franklin, Tennessee; and was taken to a hospital in Nashville; and soon thereafter passed away.

James H. Cox was aged 17 on the 1860 census.

CHILD 9 - John Brent Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox (1940): "Uncle Brent Cox was a younger brother of my father, WilliamPerry Cox, and was born in Kentucky, year 1849, at or near Somerset. In1875, he married Safrena Belle Osborn (born April 7, 1856), and soon thereafter, they moved to Clay Center, Kansas, at which place, to them were born seven children: Olla Lee, John William, Maude May, Oscar, Martha Belle, Myrtle Anna and Harvey Herman. Later, Uncle Brent and family moved to Columbus, in Eastern Kansas, at which place he purchased a large prairie farm, on which he and Aunt Safrena spent their closing years. Uncle Brent died July 13, 1932, aged 83 years, and Aunt Safrena,his wife, had passed away, 1929. Both are interred at Columbus, Kansas."

FAMILY REUNION.

Five Brothers Whose Average Age is Seventy Years, Met at the Home of J. B. Cox.

Old Father Time has certainly gone off on a fishing trip and forgotten to come back, as far as the members of the Cox family are concerned, for the years roll on and leave no visible trace upon the five brothers who gathered at the home of the baby, J. B. Cox, who is 56 years old, and lives 2 miles west of town, where they held a family reunion the first of the week.

It was certainly a remarkable gathering. Five brothers, the youngest with 56 years of toil resting lightly upon his shoulders, acted as host. The oldest, over whose head the snows of 80 winters have passed, scarcely leaving a shadow of their whiteness, is as bright of mind, as keen of eye and almost as light of step as in the days of his youth.

Where can their equal be found. With a combined age of 350 years, or an average of 70, these brothers who have lived the allotted threescore years and ten, look as though Father Time had indeed turned backward in his flight and left them boys again to enjoy life, health and happiness indefinitely.

Cumberland County, Kentucky, has the honor of giving them birth. Here they lived a life of peace and quietude until the civil war called all to take a part either for or against the Union. It was generally the case along the border states, that family ties would be severed, brother fighting against brother, father against son. Not so in this family. They were all found fighting shoulder to shoulder, and several well aimed rebel bullets were carried off the battlefield in their bodies.

Following the war, they hearkened to the "call of the wild," and settled upon the fertile fields of Kansas and Missouri. Large families were reared and the blessings of prosperity settled upon them. Of late years the brothers have not been much together, one member being absent for 36 years, and several of the others for only a slightly shorter period.

M. C. Cox, the oldest of this group, is 80 years old, and is making his home at Turon, Ks. Ballard Cox, 76, lives at Marionsville, Mo. Jacob Cox, 73, is at home in Turon, Ks. D. W. Cox, 65, is a resident of Marbelle, Mo., and J. B. Cox, 56, the youngest, has his mail delivered on route 8.

The Fountain of Youth for which the early Spanish soldiers and explorers spent their lives and fortunes searching the wilds of the New World has at last been found and is contained in the broad fields and the pure, fresh air of the western prairies.

M. C. Cox the oldest of this Volume II, "Pulaski County Cemetery Records" by Pulaski County Historical Society, p. 84 - Soule's Chapel Cemetery, E Hwy 80 near Sugar Hill: Susannah Feb 27, 1831 - Sep 17 1862 Consort of Marcellus Cox.

CHILD 1 - Maria Ella Cox

Birth & Relationship - 1860 Pulaski County, KY Census.

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County, KY Historical Society Library: "Ella was the oldest daughter of Uncle Marcellus and Aunt Susannah Hail Cox; and was born in Kentucky, 1850. She moved with the family in the covered wagon to East Missouri, 1863; and three years later to Texas, then back toSouthwest Missouri, 1868. Within a few years, she was married to Alf Hazelton, a farmer, then living in that section of the State. Cousin Alf, at one time, became interested in the lead mines at Leadville, Colorado, and worked out there for a short time. In 1899, the family moved from Missouri to Byers, a small town 30 miles from Turon, Kansas,and purchased a farm home nearby. Eleven years thereafter, 1910, Cousin Alf died, and Cousin Ella moved to Turon; brought property there, so as to be near some of her children. Cousin Ella passed away, aged severty-seven, 1927. To them were born seven children, now somewhat scattered: Allie, Lenna, Lucy, Ona, Otis, Bert, and Marcellus."

Notes

Marriage - Family records of Virgina C. Bussey. Received in 1987. Atthat time, Virginia lived in Manhattan, KS. She is no longer there and Ihave lost track of her in 1993.

Death - from "Biographical Sketches..." by Henry Jefferson Cox.

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County Kentucky Historical Society Library: "Cousin Doc Cox, the only boy of Uncle Marcellus' children, was born in Kentucky in 1852, and moved with the family to East Missouri; then to Texas and back to Southwest Missouri, 1868. Cousin Doc lived there and worked on the farm with his father until he was several years beyond his teens. He married Miss Anne McNatt, a cousin to Wash (G.W. McNatt who had married his sister, Amanda, several years before). Cousin Anne was a school mate of sister Mollie and lived only two miles from our home. Not very long after their marriage, Cousin Doc and Anne moved to Kansas, and purchased a large prairie farm near Turon, on which they lived continously until their death. Cousin Anne passed away, 1929, aged 75; and Cousin doc, only a few years later, 1935, aged 83, at Amarillo, Texas; while visiting with his daughter, Mrs. Mollie Black. They reared a family of 5 children: Mollie, Tennie, Thirza, Campbell and Eula.

CHILD 3 - Amanda L. Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County, KY Historical Society Library: "Uncle Marcellus' daughter, Amanda, was born in Kentucky, 1855, and at the age of thirteen, her father, after a short stay in East Missouri, and one and one-half years in Texas, moved to Southwest Missouri, 1868, where she lived on the farm, until her marriage to G.W. McNatt, of Aurora, MO. Her husband Wash was in the mercantile business at Aurora for several years;after which he purchased a farm home, three miles north of Aurora, on which the family lived for a number of years. Then, late in life, they left the farm and moved back to Aurora and purchased a good home there, at which they spent their few remaining years. I visited them there, 1926, while on my last visit to see Brother Dan and Alice. Cousin Wash and Amanda were both in fairly good health at that time.However, only six years thereafter, Wash passed away, age 78, and Cousing Amanda survived him only six years. Her death came suddenly February,1938, aged 83. They left behind two sons and two daughters: John, Ona, Arthur and Pearl."

CHILD 4 - Lucy Ann Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox: "Cousin Lucy Cox Brittain was born in Kentucky, 1857, and moved with her father and family to East Missouri; then to Texas, and finally in 1868, back to Southwest Missouri, at which place she lived until her marriage to John Wesley Britain of Republic, Green County, Missouri. John was a farmer. Following their marriage, they moved to his farm home, two or three miles out from Republic, at which they lived for a good number of years. They finally left the farm, purchased property in Republic,and moved to it. John then became a partner in a large MercantileBusiness for several years; also, owned stock in the Bank of Republic. Cousin John passed away three or four years ago, aged 76."

When Henry Jefferson Cox wrote his memoirs in 1940, Lucy Hail Cox was still living at age 83, in Republic with her unmarried daughter, Bettie. Other children mentioned were Wash, Will, Frank, Raymond, Clara and Loretta.

Frank, Raymond, Loretta and Bettie Brittain all lived in Houston, TX at one time, but they are all probably dead by now (1993). Frank and Raymond both married. Loretta married A.C. Pasche. Bettie remained unmarried.

CHILD 5 - Thriza Cox

Birth, Marriage & Place of Death: Virginia Bussey from Irene Petticord's family records.

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County, KY Historical Society Library: "Cousin Thirza, the youngest of the family, was born in Kentucky, and moved with her father, 1863, to St. Charles County, East Missouri, then to Texas; and back to Southwest Missouri, 1868. At which place, in LawrenceCounty, near Marionville she lived with the family on a farm; until her marriage to James Waid of Lawrence County, Missouri. James, when a young man, had served for a time as Texas Ranger, and for which service he has continued to receive a pension of $72.00 per month, and is exempt from taxes. They lived in Missouri for several years; then 1906, they moved to Stanfield, Oregon, where they now live, and own a good home. Thirzais now 80, and Cousin James 88 years of age. They have reared a family of three sons and three daughters; Joie, Lenna, Claude, Lula, Amanda and Vernon." (note: this was written in 1940)

HUSBAND - William Perry Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox: "My father, William Perry Cox, married Cynthia Ann Hail, and his eldest brother, Marcellus Cox, married Susannah Hail; all of whom were residents of Pulaski County, Kentucky. Both families continued to live in Kentucky till the fall of 1863, at which time, there were five children in each family...My father and Uncle were both farmers, and hoping to find better farming so moved together from their native state in two horse, covered wagons, a distance of several hundred miles; and time spent on the road, approximately, six weeks. The two wagons were pretty well loaded with ten youngsters. We passed over three states and three large rivers before reaching our goal, or destination; which was St. Charles County, in East Missouri, eighteen miles north of St. Louis,and two miles west of the Mississippi River. River bottom land there at that time was priced at one hundred dollars per acre; too high for the farmer or ordinary means to purchase. Both families rented farming land. My uncle, after a three year stay, moved from there to the "Lone Star"state, for a short sojourn of eighteen months; after which he returned to Southwest Missouri, Lawrence County, two miles southwest of Marionville; and not long thereafter, purchased a 40 acre farm, at which he lived till all his children were married and had homes of their own. My father thought it best to remain in East Missouri in St.Charles County and had rented a 400 acre farm home on which there was a 50 acre orchard, also a large residence (three story), and a sufficient number of rooms to accomodate three or four families. During our last four years there, my father put in a large acreage to crops; dealt heavily in live stock; mules, cattle and hogs. However, the Mississippi River bottoms soon proved to be very unhealthy. In the fall in 1866, I suffered a long serious siege of typhoid fever; the after effects of which left me a life-long cripple. In 1867, my oldest brother, James Franklin, aged 13 years and 10 months, died, following a few weeks sickness of typhoid. Then, only three years thereafter, in August, 1870, my father, aged 42 years and 10 months, was stricken with fever, and he too, within a few weeks, passed away. Father and son were both interred in St. Charles Cemetery.

WIFE - Cynthia Ann Hail

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox.

After the death of William Perry Cox, late in December, 1870, Cynthia Ann and her six children moved to Southwest Missouri; and purchased a farmhome of 80 acres of land, two miles west of Marionville, in Lawrence County; and only one mile north of the home of Marcellus Cox.

Cynthia Ann finally sold her farm, bought a house and lot at Marionville,and lived there for several years. She spent her last few years on a farm four miles west of Marionville, with son Dan and wife, Alice, where she passed away, after a short illness, 1913, aged 78, and was interred in Marionville Cemetery. She had just returned home from visiting with Henry Jefferson Cox and his family in Dyer, Tennessee.

CHILD 1 - James Franklin Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County KY Historical Society Library: "In 1867, my oldest brother, James Franklin, aged 13 years and 10 months, died following a few weeks sickness of typhoid."

CHILD 2 - Christopher Marion Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County, KY Historical Society Library: "Kit, the second eldest of the family, was born in Kentucky, Sept. 30, 1855, and was only 15 years of age when our father died. However, he remained at home and worked on the farm in Southwest Missouri until he as past 21years of age. At about 23, he married Miss Mattie Taylor, who had been his school-mate and class-mate, for four or five years, in our home district school -- Elm Branch and Fairview. Shortly after his marriage,they purchased a farm home of 80 acres on Honey Creek; four or five miles northwest of our home, to which he and Mattie moved at once. They lived there continuously for the next twenty or twenty-five years; they worked hard, and made good on the farm. They reared a family of five children: Cyrus, Bertina, Eula, Luther and Estelle. After these children were all grown, Kit and Mattie sold the farm to their eldest son, Cyrus. They then moved to Southwest Kansas, and purchased a 320 acre tract of land near Liberal; on which they lived several years, then sold a part of it, and bought town property, and lived at same a few years, until their death. Brother Kit passed away 1923, during the last year I was teaching at Gainsboro, Tenn. He was suddenly and fatally stricken with heart trouble, aged 67. His wife, Mattie, four or five younger, passed away within the next few years. They were interred at or near Liberal, Kansas. They were both very religious during their later years."

CHILD 3 - Mary Margaret Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County KY Historical Society Library: "Mollie Cox, my oldest sister, as born in Kentucky, December 30, 1857, and moved with the family, 1893, to East Missouri, and in December, 1870, aged 13, came to Southwest Missouri, Lawrence County. For the next five years, she, with the family, lived on the farm, and during said years, she was of great help to her mother in house-keeping. Her girl friends and associates during those years, were largely her double cousins: Amanda Cox, Lucy and Thirza. Her last two years in school were both in our home school district at Fairview; taught by F.A.Taylor of Lawrence County. Soon therafter, she was married to this same F.A. Taylor. Arthur, the name by which he was better known, was both farmer and school teacher. However, after their marriage, he gave up teaching and gave his entire time to the farm. Arthur was an own cousin to Kit's wife, Mattie Taylor; and at that time, he owned a good farm on Honey Creek, four miles north of our home, to which he and sister Mollie moved at once. They lived there until her death, December 12, 1883, approximately eight years. During these years, two children; Minnie and Marion were born to them. Not long thereafter, sister Mollie became an invalid and gradually grew worse till death, aged 25."

CHILD 4 - Henry Jefferson Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County KY Historical Society Library: "Henry Jefferson Cox was born in Pulaski County, Kentucky, near Somerset, March 30, 1860, and lived in my native state only 3 1/2 years. In 1863, I was one of ten youngsters in the long move in two-horse covered wagons, from Kentucky to East Missouri, at which place we lived several years. At the age of six or seven years, I attended my first school and accompanied by brother Kit and sister Mollie. The first day left some lasting impressions on me. I remember well the teacher, Mr. Mudd, and that all pupils were required to study lessons aloud so that the teacher might hear their voices and thereby know they were preparing lessons. Each one tried to be heard. However, my school days in East Missouri were cut short by a long siege of typhoid fever which was cause of my physical handicap. We lived in East Missouri only seven years. In December, 1870, we moved to the Southwest section of the State, and soon thereafter purchased an 80 acre farm home, near Marionville. I was to realize the need of an education, and due to my physical condition I could never become a successful farmer.....I had already decided to follow teaching as a profession. ...I married a Savannah girl, Capitola A. McDougal, daughter of Dr. J.F. McDougal

CHILD 5 - Daniel Winford Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County, KY Historical Society Library, 1940: "Brother Dan was born in Pulaski County, Kentucky, October 27, 1862, near Somerset, and was the youngest of our family at the time we moved from Kentucky to East Missouri, 1863. In 1870, when we moved to SouthwestMissouri and had purchased our farm home, he was then approximately 11years of age but soon became of great help in the farm work for the next 15 years. After brother Kit's marriage, Dan and Will were our farm managers for several year, and were at home, one or both, with mother and sister Ella during the 5 years I was in the University. However, Dan visited me once, while at Columbia and entered school, but soon became dissatisfied and returned to the old farm home at Marionville. Later, he made several trips to Kansas and visited some relatives out there. He was the last of our family to marry. He married Miss Alice McNatt, daughter of Allen McNatt of Lawrence County, a cousin of Wash McNatt, who had married our cousin Amanda Cox several years previous. During the two year brother Will and I were in the grocery business at Marionville, Dan helped us in the store and drove the delivery wagon. Later, he was in business several years at Mt. Vernon, Aurora, and last at Marionville. Because of ailing health, he was forced to retire; after which, he and Alice moved to a little farm home 3 miles south of Aurora at which place his condition grew worse and within two or three years, he passed away, year 1927, aged 65. They had two children: Bernice and Allen. Allen, the younger, seriously afflicted from infancy, died while yet in his teens, only a short time after the death of his father. Bernice, only a few years older than her brother Allen, was away from home the last time I visited the family, 1926....She married Jesse Lanning, an automobile salesman in California."

CHILD 6 - William P. Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox in the Pulaski County Historical Society Library. (1940): "Will, my youngest brother, was born in St. Charles County, East Missouri, January 5, 1865. After moving to Southwest Missouri, he was helpful to brother Kit, and later to brother Dan as a co-worker on the farm, for a number ofyears, until mother sold the farm and bought town property at Marionville. He then purchased one-half interest in a grocery store from his brother-in-law, John C. Stafford, who had married his sister Ella a few years before. In 1890, he married Miss Lottie Rogers, daughter of O. J. Rogers and Mattie Rogers, of Marionville, and continued in business there until 1895, and at which time, hoping to recuperate in health, he sold out and moved to San Antonio, Texas. Not satisfied there, they moved to a nearby mountain town, and engaged in general merchandising for eight years. He then closed out there and was in the grocery busines only a few months at Miles Station, Texas, before his death, November 14, 1905, aged 40, and was interred at Marionville, MO. Lottie, his wife and the five children moved to Green Forest, Arkansas, at which place John C. Stafford and family were living. Several years later Lottie married C.C. Kirkham. To Lottie and brother Will were born: Everett, Ella May, William Lee, Reba Faye and Edna Louise."

CHILD 7 - Ella Maria Cox

"Biographical Sketches of the Cox and Hail Families" by Henry Jefferson Cox, 1940, in the Pulaski County Kentucky Historical Society Library:"Ella, my youngest sister, was born in East Missouri, Jully 11, 1868, and was only two and one-half years of age when we moved to Southwest Missouri, 1870. For the next twelve or fourteen years, she lived on our farm home with her mother and family. Late in July, 1885, she married John C. Stafford of Marionville. John went into the grocery business and soon there after sold Brother Will one-half interest in the store .However, Sister Ella died only two years and nine months after their marriage; leaving one baby boy, Carroll Jefferson. A few years after Ella's death, John married Miss Betty Logan; quit the grocery business, and purchased a farm, near Green Forest, Arkansas and moved to it."

WIFE - Lottie Rogers

Melanie,

Here are a few notes about the pictures:

The ones of William and Lottie are on that thick cardboard paper stuff and they each say "H. Heyland, Fredericksburg Texas." Fredericksburg is right near Willow City, where they lived somewhere between 1895 and 1905, so I'm assuming they got the pictures taken at a studio there. William would be in his 30's and Lottie in her 20's at the time the picture was taken.

The back of the picture of the storefront says (in Lottie's handwriting):

For Everette,
Your fathers store in Marionville. This picture is as old as you are.

Then it has a typewritten piece of paper attached to the back under her handwriting that says (and I'm typing this EXACTLY as it is on the picture):

W P COX CHARLIE DURONIA
GROCERY STORE

PAUL DERONIA ON DElivery wagon,

CHARLIE DERONIA ON SIDEWALK,

W P COX (BILLY)

NOT sure but think it is MR MC-Kinley Sitting in front of the store

I have tried to copy the back of the picture, but it does not come out well at all. It is readable in person though. You can see the sign says COX (something) GROCERIES on it. Can't make out the other word next to COX though. I would imagine this was taken before he moved to Texas.

Hope you enjoy these. If you have any, I would be very interested in any pictures of Marcellus and family. Even one of you and your family if you have one handy.

Let me know if you need/want anything else.

Take care,
Kristi

Subject: My address

Hi Melanie,

It was so good to talk with you. It sounds as if you've really done a lot of research on the Cox's and I'm really looking forward to sharing info. However, my couple of years experience with genealogy hardly compares to you're 20. I feel you will be slighted with the amount of information I can contribute, and much of it you probably already know. But, I will certainly contribute what I can, and like you said, I do have some pictures.

I've been trying to get all my genealogy stuff organized, oh...for the last 6 months now. But, I've had a difficult time coming up with the best way of keeping all this paperwork in order, let alone find the time. I made a big mistake when I bought my computer. When I found out about genealogy on the Internet, I went online and searched for ANYTHING on EVERYBODY which resulted in mounds of paperwork to be researched, filed, etc. Then I started probing my dad for info on his side (which he knows very little about), so I kind of got sidetracked. He knows almost nothing about his dad, but he knows his mother's parents came over from Norway and he knew their names. I found reference of them on the LDS web site, so I plan on making a trip to the Family History Center. I'm real excited about finding something on them. However, I've heard that searching for Scandinavian ancestors can be difficult, because of their naming practices. Anyway, I'd like to be able to find information on my dad's family before he passes on. I think he'd like that.

The Cox family is my mother's side and their seems to be a "plethora" of information out there on them. If you are interested in my branch, I can send you a descendency chart or something beginning with Wm P Cox, so you can see how I made it into this world. I believe you said you were descended from Rex McNatt. My info stops with the children of Arthur McNatt and Nellie Gamble. How are you related to Rex? I wanted to ask you also, if you have the other sketch that Henry J. Cox did. It's his life sketch. If you don't have it, I can send you a copy.

Well, I better go. Look forward to keeping in touch with you. Again, let me know if I can reimburse you for any costs - I insist! Here's my address: Kristi Thompson, 2437 Teaberry Glen, Escondido, CA 92027. Are you still at 1718 Pinnacle Dr.?

March 30, 1938.

It is sincerely hoped that the following sketch of one now aged seventy-eight years, and having served as principal and teacher in public and private high schools of Missouri and Tennessee for forty-four scholastic years of nine and ten months each, may be of interest in the years to come to my children, grandchildren, nephews, nieces and cousins.

My life, as a whole, has been uneventful. However, it shall be my purpose to recall and outline many happenings and minor events, closely connected with my own life, from the time of birth, March 30, 1860, up to the present date, March 30, 1938.

At the time of my birth, my father and mother were living in Kentucky, at or near Somerset, Pulaski County. My father's full name was William Perry Cox, and my mother's maiden name, Cynthia Anne Hail. They continued to live there until late in October, 1863, at which time both my father and uncle Marcellus, his eldest brother, who had married my mother's sister, decided to leave their native state, and seek more fertile land somewhere in Missouri. It was then regarded as a very long move, to go several hundred miles in the old-time two-horse covered wagon.

There were two wagons and each was pretty well loaded. Our wagon carried the two parents and five children; the other wagon carried my uncle and five much larger and older children. My uncle's wife, their mother, had died two or three years before.

At this time I was only three years and six months of age, yet I can recall many little happenings, very distinctly, which occurred while living there in Kentucky.

I have only a very faint memory of my grandfathers and grandmothers, whom we left behind. Yet I can vision my grandfather Hail's old home, especially the house and nearby surroundings.

Also, later, when far out on our journey toward Missouri, I can recall the plan by which we crossed the Wabash River on an old dilapidated wooden bridge. The bridge had been condemned, yet it was still in use. After some investigation, my father and uncle decided to attempt to cross it. My uncle walked over to the far end for further inspection, and then requested that his team, with empty wagon, be started across the treacherous bridge to try it out. They passed over in safety. My father then walked across and drove his team, with empty wagon, followed at a safe distance by my mother and the ten children. This same bridge collapsed under the weight of two moving covered wagons only two days thereafter, and all occupants were killed with the exception of one small child, which was rescued by the family dog.

Our relatives, back in Kentucky and also in nearby Indiana, on hearing of the disaster, and thinking we were the victims, hurried to the scene. With us were two wagons, a one-year old child, brother Dan, and a large dog, which made the reports very plausible.

The distance from Somerset, Kentucky, to our destination, East Missouri, was approximately one thousand miles. As I recall it, we were five or six weeks on the road. We passed over a large part of three states, and crossed three large rivers, and at last reached our goal in Eastern Missouri, two miles west of the Mississippi River, and twenty miles north of the city of St. Louis, in St. Charles County.

This, at first, seemed to be an ideal place for a farmer. However, my uncle became dissatisfied within two or three years and moved again, this time toward the southwest, and finally stopped for another short sojourn of two years in the "Lone Star" State. My father, being a farmer and pleased with the more fertile land than that which he had cultivated while in Kentucky, thought it best to remain there and try the Mississippi River bottom land. This land was extremely fertile, but was too high priced for one of ordinary means to purchase.

Within a short time he rented a large farm of four houndred acres, on which there was a large rock dwelling, three or four stories in height. In fact, it was a real mansion and was our domicile for the six or seven years that we lived in East Missouri.

Of the tillable land on the farm, over three hundred acres were seeded in wheat, corn and broom-corn.

My father also dealt heavily in live stock: horses, mules, cattle and hogs.

The location of the farm proved to be very sickly. All of us suffered from chills, malarial fever, and typhoid fever in malignant form. In the year 1867, I had a long siege of typhoid fever, the after effects of which left me a life-long cripple. My eldest brother, James Franklin, a few months thereafter, sickened and died of typhoid fever, aged fourteen years.

Also, early in October, 1870, my father, then only forty-two years of age, was stricken with typhoid fever and, within a few weeks, was taken from us. It was a great and irreparable loss to our family.

My mother, now heart-broken and bereft of both eldest son and husband, was at a loss to know just what was best to do.

She was left, almost suddenly, with a family of six dependent children: Christopher Marion, aged 16; Mary Margaret, aged 13; Henry Jefferson, aged 11; Daniel Winford, aged 9; William Perry, Jr., aged 6; and Ella Maria, aged 2-1/2 years. The latter two children were born in Missouri. My uncle, at this time, had moved back from Texas to Southwest Missouri, and had rented a small farm near Aurora, in Lawrence County.

My mother decided to sell out and move down near him. She, at once, had a public sale and sold all the live stock at great sacrifice; also all the farm implements and other personal property except household goods. We moved, by rail, this time to Aurora, Missouri, and my uncle met us at the station and took us to his home, which was not far away. He was driving two very large long-horned Texas oxen, which to us children was quite an animal show. We spent the remainder of that winter, from December of that year until April of the following year, in his home.

His five children were all living at that time: Ella, aged 20; Doc, aged 18; Amanda, aged 16; Lucy, aged 14; and Thirza, aged 12 years.

In the early spring of 1871, we rented a little make-shift home, which was nearby, for one year.

In 1872, we purchased an eighty-acre farm home, more than half of which was good tillable land and the remainder woodland, located two miles due west of Marionville, Lawrence County, Missouri. Soon, thereafter, my uncle moved from his home near Aurora and bought a forty-acre farm home, situated one mile south of us. The two families, then near neighbours, lived there and made good on the farms for the next fifteen years.

Brother Kit, my eldest brother, at that time approximately eighteen years of age, with the advice of his mother and some substantial help from three younger brothers, managed our farm for several years; until the two younger brothers were able to take charge.

As a farm boy, I was usually strong, husky and able to do my part in all kinds of farm work, except to follow the plow or to perform other work in which much walking was necessary. I began to realize then, for the first time, that I was too much handicapped to be a farmer, and that I must strive for an education.

My opportunities for attending school in the past had been very limited, both in East and Southwest Missouri.

In East Missouri, at the age of 6-1/2 years, I entered my first school, accompanied by brother Kit and sister Mollie, but typhoid fever cut short my attendance and I remember almost nothing of my first school except that the teacher's name was Mr. Mudd, and that all the school children studied their lessons aloud.

In Southwest Missouri, my opportunities were better but were by no means good. My age, when there, from eleven to seventeen years, was a more favorable age; and during that six-year period, I attended school regularly for six consecutive fall terms of four months each, also summer terms of three months each, all of which were fairly good rural schools and within walking distance.

At the age of seventeen, I entered the Marionville Collegiate Institute, located only two miles from our home, and went back and forth daily on horseback. This Institute was under the control of the M. E. Church and offered a good four-year course of high school work. I was in attendance there regularly for two years, taking such work as would best prepare me for entrance at the State University.

The Institute was articulated with the Missouri State University, and gave credits which were accepted at same. During the summer vacation, between my first and second years at Marionville, I had my first taste of school-teaching; however, it was only a one class school for a period of twelve days in Penmanship.

The class consisted largely of middle-aged men, interested in the work and exemplary in deportment. I was delighted with my first effort and became more anxious to try real school-teaching.

At the close of my second year at Marionville, I began at once to plan for entering the University the following September, 1879. I was then nineteen years of age, and had a real desire and determination to get a better education but was then seriously handicapped for lack of money.

We were farmers but we had no salable crop at that time from which to get the needed cash. My mother was willing and anxious to help me but could not say definitely when she could.

I decided to investigate plans by which to meet my own expenses, while at the University, and at once wrote a letter to one of the boys from my own county, who had been in the University for the past two years and to my certain knowledge was working and paying his own current expenses. His letter, in reply, was very encouraging and suggested that I come at once. He said, if I would take the Agricultural Course, I would have very little or no trouble in getting work of some kind at ten cents per hour.

I had also been in correspondence with others there and was now fully decided I would take the risk, hit or miss.

With only $12.00 cash, in sight, I made ready to leave home at once on August 1, 1879, hoping to reach destination and to secure work by which I might add a few dollars to my balance before school opening. I was in need of a trunk and spent $2.50 of my $12.00 for same. The University was located at Columbia, Boone County, a few miles north of the Missouri River.

I had planned to go by way of St. Louis and had secured a free pass from our local merchant, Mr. John C. Jones, who was then buying and shipping cattle in car-load lots to St. Louis. I thereby saved $10.50 in care-fare. I was expected to look after the cattle in case of stop-overs or delays.

My chum, Ben Pyle, a neighbor boy, who had agreed to go with me, changed his mind at the last minute. He was an all-round good boy and expressed his regrets five years later.

I went on a freight train to St. Louis and rode in the caboose at rear end and had no trouble with the stock. From St. Louis on to Columbia, by way of Mexico and Centralia, my railroad fare was only $4.50, and on reaching Columbia I still had $2.50 in my pocket.

I took only a short time off to look over the city, the population of which was only about 3,600. I then walked over to the University buildings, not far away. I soon located Prof. George Hussman, Assistant Dean of the Agricultural Department. I related to him frankly both my mission and condition, and that I was just in from Lawrence County, Missouri. I told him I was expecting to take the Agricultural Course and would enter school in September. He said they would likely have work for all the agricultural students and would pay them, every week-end, ten cents per hour. He then initiated me with a soft-snap sit-down job, wiring fruit tree labels and selling grapes to passers-by, under a large shed in the corner of a four-acre field of Concord grapes. He later made me head-man under the shed for a brief period. My next work was in the vineyard, helping a dozen or more boys to finish the grape picking. Later, I wielded a garden hoe in various truck patches for eleven hours a day. I was already well acquainted with the hoe.

When school opened, on or about September 5th, I had worked 26 days, of 11 hours each, for which I had received $28.60.

I had kept "bach" with five or six of my boy friends during this time, at a cost of only six or seven dollars. Soon, thereafter, the club-houses opened and we "bachers" at once secured rooms there for the school year.

These club-houses were under the management of the University. There were approximately 75 young men at each of the two clubs. The regular matrons at once took charge. They kept first-class cooks, and house-maids who kept all our rooms in shape.

The University paid half of the matron hire and charged the boys no room rental. We assessed ourselves, in bi-weekly meetings, by a majority vote, for the total amount each one would pay into the treasury, to cover expenses: board, laundry and one-half of the matron hire for the next two weeks. These expenses, with very few exceptions, never exceeded $7.00 per month.

I kept "bach" for three or four summer vacations with a few of the other boys, but only when the matrons were not in charge. I boarded at the club house during my first, fourth and fifth years; and in a private family during the second and third years, with Mr. John Swindle and wife, who had moved there from Barry County, in the southwest corner of the State, for school advantages for himself and two younger brothers. They boarded several other young men from that section and had agreed to keep all of us at club rate prices. Their residence was on a small woodland lot nearby, within walking distance of the University.

Tuition, at the University, in the Academic Department, was only $20.00 for the entire ten months. However, the boys who took the Agricultural Course and did regular work by which to meet school expenses, were charged no tuition.

My total expenses, not including books and clothing, for my first three years in the University, did not exceed $275.00. The greater part of which expenses I met by various kinds of work, at ten cents per hour.

However, during this time, I received from home $50.00. I taught two classes in penmanship in a class-room at the University, from which I received $40.00, tuition. I had tried to practice economy, and at this time, near the close of my third year, had made no home-visits, yet at times and only during my first year had I been home-sick. A visit during these first three years would have been at a sacrifice. The teachers in agriculture insisted that those enrolled in that course remain, when possible, for the better and greater variety of the summer work, for class credits, in the Agricultural Course.

Late, in August, just before school opening of my fourth year, I managed to get off for a little home visit of only one week.

At this time, I had completed all requirements in the first three years of the five-year curriculum in the A. B. Course, and had finished all but one or two subjects in each of the two-year courses.

While at home, my folks made plans to help me financially for my last two years. They had raised $400.00 for my assistance and placed it in the Marionville Bank, that I might check on it at will or when needed. It seemed to come as a God-send, at an opportune time. I was then expecting some very hard work in both the Junior and Senior years of my Latin, Greek and Math., which, together with the unfinished work in the other two courses, would require the greater part of my time, leaving little, or none, in which to earn expense money - which, in the past, had required every summer vacation and all holidays.

I returned to the University, somewhat refreshed and more hopeful as to final results than I had been, and re-entered school in September, 1882. My school work was heavy during the final two years, yet all went well with no serious troubles whatsoever. I did a small amount of outside manual labor but only such as was necessary to satisfy some agricultural requirements.

I boarded continuously at one of the club houses during the last two years, and the intervening summer vacations, at the regular club house rates of $7.00 per month, and practiced economy as best I could under the circumstances.

I passed on all subjects required in each of the three courses, fairly satisfactory to myself and apparently so to the professors, who had the final say; and for which I received the three tokens or degrees: A.B., Pe.B. and Ag.B.

After paying an additional $5.00 for each little parchment, my five-year term in the Missouri State University, at Columbia, Boone County, Missouri, was ended.

Shakespeare said, "All's well that ends well". To me, the outlook was good. I had just received a high grade "Teacher's Life State Certificate" from the State Superintendent of Education, of Missouri, as the result of a special examination, which was given to all would-be pedagogues of the graduating class for the school year closing June 4, 1884.

Also, one month before graduation, I had been elected as a teacher in my home town school, the Marionville Collegiate Institute, for a term of ten months, beginning the following September.

This school, the Marionville Collegiate Institute, was the one at which I had taken the two-year preparatory work for the University. This position had come to me unexpectedly through the efforts of a very near neighbor, back at home, who was a member of the School Board at town but who lived very near us in the country. His brother, John A. McCullah, a Marionville merchant and Secretary of the School Board, had co-operated.

I appreciated their friendship very, very much and most gladly accepted the position on condition that I passed on final examinations.

During the five years I had failed to pass in the first test on only three subjects and had low grades on two or three others, in all of which I made good on the second trial. I won honor on three occasions. I was awarded a $10.00 prize for the highest grade, in a class of 62, in first year Greek. I also divided honors with Mr. E. A. Boeger, in a class of 12 contestants, for best and fastest work in reaping, binding and shocking one-fourth acre of heavy, thick-standing wheat. During my senior year I won a decision, empty honor only, for best essay in a public inter-society contest, held annually, on debate, oration, declamation, and essay. My competitor was Mr. Godwin. We were judged on subject matter and rendition. There were 4 contestants from each society.

At that time, aged 24 years, I had far more confidence in myself as a wheat-harvest hand than as a pedagogue with no experience as such. In class room work I felt that I was prepared for it, yet I was sure it would be hard work.

The Marionville School opened as usual, early in September, 1884, for ten months, and was still offering a four-year high school course in which I was assigned the greater part of the higher work.

The School was financed from tuition and interest on gifts and donations. It was a Methodist Conference School. It enrolled would-be ministers from 17 of the total 114 counties in Missouri during the school year.

Prof. John Turrentine, who was head of the School when I had gone there as a student, five years before, was still Superintendent and Financial Agent of the School.

I had been elected as principal, and teacher of Latin, Greek, English and higher mathematics, and was so designated in our school catalogues.

Salaries at that time were not high. There were 4 teachers, and my salary, 27-1/2% of the income, was $710.00 for the term. From this amount I repaid $200.00 of the $400.00 which I had borrowed, and also a board bill of $160.00 for myself and sister Ella, who was then a student and boarded in town. I was satisfied with my first year in a "life-long" profession, yet, was hoping for something better financially the second year, when I received a letter from an old University schoolmate, Mr. H. P. Wood, who had graduated in law at Columbia and returned to his home near Savannah, Tennessee, and who insisted that I come to Tennessee and take partnership with him in the purchase of a large brick school building, which could then be bought for $1,000.00, on easy terms. His plan was that he and I buy it, conduct an independent private school, as co-principals, and share income and expenses equally. This idea appealed to me as I had already considered a change. After some further correspondence, I agreed to join him. Mr. Wood had come to the Missouri University for a two-year course in law, at the beginning of my last year there, and we had become pretty good friends. I soon thereafter made plans to leave home late in July, 1885. My folks at home were in good shape to get along without me.

My sister Ella had married John C. Stafford soon after the close of the Marionville School. He was at that time in the grocery business at Marionville. My mother was comfortably situated on the farm with her two younger sons, Dan and Will.

Hoping to make good in the "Volunteer State", Tennessee, I left Missouri, July 30, 1885, and came by rail through Memphis, Tennessee, Corinth, Mississippi, and arrived at Savannah on August 1st.

On reaching the town, I, at once, made inquiry for Mr. H. P. Wood, and located him, at work, over at the school building, with carpenters, planning and making needed repairs on the building. In a short time we consummated our partnership deal on the contemplated enterprise. We purchased the two-story brick school building and four-acre lot, for $1,000.00, same to be used for literary or educational purposes.

We agreed upon a ten-months term, to be co-principals in teaching, discipline, and in the general control of the school.

It was to be an absolutely independent school, offering a curriculum equal to, or higher than, those offered in high schools of nearby counties. We taught four-year Latin, all college mathematics, some Greek and German. The District Directors, then a part of our local school board, had agreed to pay us a specified sum from the county funds to teach all public school pupils within the district and within the free school age, which was six to twenty-one years, for a five-months period - same to begin at our opening. During the month of August, prior to opening of school on September 1st, Mr. Wood and I campaigned Hardin County, and three or four other contiguous counties, for boarding students, and for families with children of school age to rent houses and move to town. All boarding students and the students who were over-age or under-age were charged tuition for the entire ten months. Also, the public school pupils, within free school age, who attended school after the expiration of the public school term, were charged regular tuition rates. From these sources, we were enabled to pay all assistants a fair salary for the entire ten-months term and still have a surplus, not large but usually satisfactory, for our remuneration after all tuition bills had been collected.

The school patronage for the past two years in which Mr. Wood and I were partners was good, both as to local and boarding students. The town, in general, gave us full co-operation. We offered a great deal of the higher work in the third and fourth years, prepared especially to meet competition for boarding students from other high grade schools in nearby counties. At that time most of the county seats had high schools. With the close of our second year, Mr. Wood retired from teaching to begin the practice of Law, his chosen profession and that for which he had prepared. Two years in the school room, he said, was only a side line by which to help finance himself and family over his first year of Law Practice. Mr. Wood is still engaged in his chosen line of work at Selmer. As a citizen and lawyer, he has few equals. He and I were friends as school mates, class mates, co-principals in school work for two years, near neighbors for thirteen years and warm friends to date.

When he retired from our school work partnership at the close of our second year, I purchased all his interest in the school property and assumed full control of the school for the next two years. By this purchase, my liabilities and responsibilities were greatly increased

At that time I was twenty-seven years of age, and unmarried; but soon thereafter I married a Savannah girl, Capitola A. McDougal, youngest daughter of Dr. J. F. McDougal, a practicing physician, who had moved there, several years before, from Wayland Springs, Lawrence County, Tennessee.

We were married August 7, 1887, at the home of her sister, Mrs. D. W. Broyles, and in the presence of her father, three brothers, Mrs. Broyles and husband, and a few other near relatives and friends; with Rev. T. L. Cotton, local Methodist Minister, officiating.

Capitola was then only a few years beyond her teens, yet she was a teacher of three or four years experience in the public schools of the county. She had completed a high school course at Savannah, when the school was at its best.

During our fourth and last year at Savannah, 1889, she was added to our Faculty of teachers, and, in reality, was a great help-meet to me in school work for the next twenty years. Her work was largely with the primary and elementary pupils; the work she most loved and in which she always made good, both in teaching and management. However, she often took high school work in emergencies.

At the beginning of third year, Prof. Weedin and wife, both well equipped, and very popular teachers of the county, replaced Mr. Wood on our next faculty.

As our four-year period at Savannah was now nearing the close, we began to make preparations to go elsewhere. I disposed of the school building and four-acre lot, for $1380.00, selling to a few of the business men of the town.

We were leaving Savannah of our own accord, not expecting to return in six years for another 4-year term. However, it so happened that we did. It was my wife's home and to me, also, it had become very home-like. It was really a wealthy town for its size, then approximately 1500 population, situated on East bank of the Tennessee River, seven miles from Shiloh Battlefield, and twelve miles north of the Federal Government Pickwick Dam, now almost completed. While there, our school had been well patronized every year. Financially and socially, I had no complaint but at that time I thought four years in succession long enough for any principal of a school at same place.

Our next location, at which I had already been elected, was Adamsville, a small town, not quite so large as Savannah, but was a good school town at that time, July, 1889, and was situated only eight or nine miles west of Savannah, in McNairy County. We were there only three years, this time, but returned later for another period, all told seven years. However, two only, of the three years at Adamsville, to which I refer, were consecutive, the other one, my third, came immediately following a one-year stay at Saltillo, fifteen miles away. At Adamsville, I took the school (but bought no school building) on almost the same terms and agreements that I had taken the Savannah School, with no guarantee of salary except the specified sum to be paid from public funds, for a four-months' school; same to be taught with and during the first part of our ten-months' term. I selected my own assistant teachers and paid them, per month, for ten months, approximately what the teachers in the public rural schools, only four months, were receiving at that time.

Our school building had only four class-rooms, in which we were to teach a total enrollment of more than two hundred students. It was not possible for four teachers, myself and three assistants, to do them justice. However, it was a saving to me on teacher expenses which I was expecting to meet from the county funds for teaching four-months public school, and tuition from several over-school-age students and from all boarders.

After paying my three assistants, I had left a reasonable amount for my own salary. All teachers had heavy work. I taught fifteen 30-minute classes daily, from eight a.m. to five p.m., the greater part of which, being high school subjects, required some preparation and quite often a little midnight kerosene.

At the very beginning of our school, the first year, serious sickness struck us. Aubrey, our only child at that time, born October 2, 1888, and then only eleven months old, developed fever, and for several months was in critical condition, requiring constant medical attention.

And, at the same time, his mother was seriously stricken with typhoid fever, which lasted several weeks, after which she suffered spells of acute inflamatory rheumatism, and neuralgia, for months.

However, during all these months, we were most fortunate in having many good neighbors, and especially Mrs. Boone and Mrs. Foster, who lived nearest to us. They were always ready and willing, as good samaritans, to give us all assistance possible. They have both passed on, years ago, but not forgotten.

At close of my third and last year at Adamsville, I retired from school work for two years to try the mercantile business at Marionville, my old home town. I had planned to buy one-half share in a grocery store with my brother Will, who had been in business there for five or six years with a brother-in-law, John C. Stafford, but who had recently bought out John's interests and transferred same to me. At this time, I had spent nine years in the school room, four of which had been in Savannah, three at Adamsville, one at Saltillo, and one, my first, at Marionville, school year beginning September, 1884.

We moved back to Missouri the latter part of June, 1893, and this time by rail, from Selmer, through Corinth, Miss., Memphis, Tenn., and Springfield, Missouri. We were real glad to see all the home folks, relatives, and Marionville friends. We, at once, rented a resident home, not far away from my mother's home, and within throwing distance of our grocery building. Our little family at this time consisted of three children: Henry Aubrey, Mary C., born at Adamsville, February 9, 1890, and James F., born at Saltillo, July 1, 1892.

Brother Will had married Lottie Rogers and had two children: Everett and Ella.

The grocery business opened under the new management, "Cox Brothers", with a splendid trade and good outlook, yet there were two other grocery stores in the town of fifteen hundred population.

Brother Dan was with us all the time, and was kept busy on the delivery wagon. Brother Will and I looked after the inside store work; and for almost two years, though competition was sharp, we had large sales and, at least, held our own.

Near the close of our second year, Will decided to quit the store for a few months, at least, for health and outing. He was away three or four months and found a new location, in Western Texas, to which he moved later.

During these months, I had become somewhat dissatisfied with the mercantile business and was seriously considering a return to the school room at close of two years.

I decided I was a better teacher than I was a merchant. Also, that I was better suited for that work. While pondering seriously over the matter, I received a telegram from Dr. J. K. Barlow, Secretary of the School Board at Savannah, in which he stated that I had been elected principal of Savannah High School for the following school year. He was asking for an early reply. My wife, Capitola, and I, at once discussed the matter, both pro and con, but pro easily won out, and we fully decided to accept, if we could dispose of my half interest in the store. Savannah was my wife's former home and the place at which we had taught from 1885 to 1889, a 4-year term. It so happened I soon found a very anxious would-be purchaser, ready and willing to buy and pay cash; cost and carriage for my part of the stock, also a fifty dollar bonus.

I wrote Dr. Barlow that I would accept and would be at Savannah on or before a certain date. The old brick school building they had bought from me six years before had burned down, four or five years thereafter, and at this time they were using a large two-story library building which was very satisfactory, but not well located.

On reaching Savannah, I purchased another building for $1,000.00; larger, better and well located on a four-acre lot in the suburbs of the town.

After making considerable repairs and various changes, we had a very convenient school building. I again took the school, as before, for what I could make out of it, in preference to the ordinary straight salary, knowing conditions there from past experience. And again, as before, I campaigned the county for boarders; and worked up good local patronage. I received $150.00 per month to teach all the public school pupils for a five-months term, same to begin with the opening of the ten months' school year.

We enrolled forty or fifty boarding students, from different parts of the county, and for the first two years I was sole principal and made good financially and paid all assistants fair salaries.

For my last two years, though our school was equally good or better, my part of surplus was not quite so good. I had agreed to take H. E. Woodside into equal partnership, he and I to be co-principals, on condition he purchase one-half interest in the school property, which he did by giving me his personal notes.

As co-principals, we shared equally the surplus incomes. At final settlement he was unable to redeem his obligations.

I then returned his notes and retained his half of the property. Mr. Woodside was a good, clever, young man, but had not yet learned economy. He married soon thereafter, Miss Belle Patterson, a former student of mine, and daughter of Judge E. D. Patterson of Savannah.

At the close of that year, ending my second four-year stay at Savannah, I was ready to move again, still convinced that four consecutive years at same place long enough for any principal of a school. On leaving Savannah, I rented the building to Mr. H. E. Woodside, and Mr. Ed. Patterson, the latter a brother of Elizabeth Patterson and son of Judge Patterson, for school purposes.

Early in April, 1896, our fourth baby, Ella, was born; but her life was cut short. In July of the following year, with little or no warning, God's messenger came suddenly, and took her from us, aged fifteen months.

Early in March of the following year, the school building burned; on which I collected a small Insurance, $700.00; and soon thereafter sold the four acre lot for $250.00.

Again we followed the old trail, moving direct from Savannah to Adamsville, as we had ten years previously. However, before going this time, I hesitated on the proposition of teaching the four-months' public school of two-hundred enrollment for only $650.00; which would require four assistant teachers.

They had repaired the school building, during my six years absence, and added one class room, which would require one more assistant, with no addition to the lump sum of public funds. Some of my best friends were then on the local school board and were insisting we come, for one year at least. We moved in August, 1899, and gave them a one-year trial. I had taken the school on almost the same terms I had previously.

We used four assistants during the public school, then dispensed with one, and continued the school for the remainder of the ten months' term. Our boarding and over-age patronage was much better than usual. We also had a large percentage of public school pupils to continue with us, and pay tuition, during the latter six months.

Financially, we did fairly well for the year; and on leaving we promised, if and when wanted, we would return and finish a four-year period. We did return 13 years thereafter to finish the term.

Our next move, rather sudden and unexpected, was to Clifton, Wayne County, Tennessee, approximately thirty-five miles northeast of Adamsville; a small town of eight or ten hundred population, and situated on the east bank of the Tennessee River. The business part of the town was located on rocky bluffs, well above high water. The residential section of the town bordered on lowlands, which at times was flooded.

We liked the Clifton people very much and our school patronage, for the one year we were there, was good.

The school building, at that time, was too small for the number of pupils.

We had only three class rooms, but did the work of four teachers; trying to carry all grades, elementary, and high school to the fourth year.

We had a large enrollment in all eight grades of the elementary course, and good classes in first three years of high school; though we turned out no finished products. Tom Stribling, then in third year high, was apparently the most brilliant of the class. He was then approximately eighteen years of age, and seemed to have considerable aspiration for oratory, and poetry.

On one occasion, February 14, when I had failed to spare the rod on a somewhat obstreperous young fellow of twelve years, I found on our front porch, late in the evening, the following brief, sentimental, anonymous poem:

"Heart and hickory broke in twain,
Never do the like again.
If you'd have your virtue shine,
Never whip on Valentine."

The author of above poem is now known as T. S. Stribling, having written quite a number of very interesting historical stories and novels.

Health, at Clifton, with us was not good; in fact, our children, Aubrey, Mary and James, had chills and fever, in light form, during the year we were there. Mildren, our youngest child, was born October 6, 1900, at Clifton.

Late in May, 1901, we moved from Clifton to Olive Hill, fifteen miles southward, in the extreme eastern part of Hardin County. I purchased a large stock of general merchandise from A. M. Patterson, who had been in the business at Olive Hill for two or three years; having succeeded Capt. R. D. DeFord, my wife's brother-in-law, then a citizen of Olive Hill.

I bought his entire stock, at a 20% discount on his cost-mark price, supposed to be cost and carriage. However, a small per cent of the goods were slightly shelf-worn, yet with the 20% discount we were enabled to sell at his cost price, and still make 25% profit. Our total sales of merchandise, both of the shelf-worn and new stock, were very satisfactory, and especially so on Saturdays. Our trade was largely with farmers of the village and nearby surroundings who could not, as a rule, pay cash, thereby necessitating quite a bit of credit trade to meet competition.

Olive Hill had a population of about 200, two stores and a post office. The post office was conducted in the front part of our store building and was managed by our clerical force: Henry Aubrey Cox, myself, Capitola in emergencies, and usually one other. We were all salesmen and postmasters.

Total quarterly receipts from the post office were from $40.00 to $45.00, depending entirely on stamp cancellations, which was insufficient for the trouble involved.

In buying, and trying again the mercantile business, I had hoped to like general merchandising better than I had the grocery business.

This was my second and last experiment in business, and I returned to the school room.

In closing out, I still had $600.00 uncollected accounts, the most of which, however, would have been collected had I continued in business.

However, Capt. R. D. DeFord and son, J. E., purchased my stock of goods; and later took over all my credit accounts at 25% discount.

The DeFords were then in the flour-milling business, operating an Overshot water-wheel mill on a nearby creek.

With the above loss of $150.00 on accounts, together with a rental expense of $300.00 for both residence and store building, plus doctor bills and living expenses for the year, I barely broke even.

My friend, H. P. Wood, attorney and citizen of Selmer, and Secretary of the School Board, had written me that they were considering my election as principal of Selmer High School for the coming year; and wishing to know, if elected, would I accept; also telling me of general conditions there, and especially the school outlook.

I replied promptly, telling him, if elected, I would certainly accept.

Soon, thereafter, I was notified of my election. We, at once, moved there, late in June, 1902, a distance of fifty miles.

We were well pleased with the general appearance of Selmer. It was a new town, and had recently been made county seat of McNairy County.

Purdy, only seven miles away, had long been the county seat, and had battled for years to retain it.

Selmer had grown rapidly within a few years, and, at that time, had a population of twelve hundred, including those immediately outside the corporate limits.

It was located on the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, forty miles south of Jackson, Tennessee.

The school building was a very convenient two-story brick building, situated on high ground, outside the business section. There were several class rooms on the lower floor and one large assembly hall above.

We usually had five to seven teachers on our faculty, including Music and Expression teachers.

The following were in the list every year during the four years:

H. J. Cox,
Mrs. H. J. Cox,
J. D. Mullins,
Miss Beatrice Grisham.

Miss Grisham, on Thanksgiving day of our third school year, became Mrs. J. D. Mullins.

Mr. Mullins had been suggested by the School Board as a suitable man for the place. He was well qualified for the work, and a very popular teacher of the county.

My wife, with one assistant, had charge of the primary and elementary work, covering the first six grades.

Mr. Mullins and I taught the seventh and eighth grades, and the four years of high school.

Our high school course, at that time, was not inferior to those of other high schools in nearby counties. I had taken the school, as I had other schools, with no guaranteed salary, except from county funds, which in this case was $750.00 for a term of five months.

Mr. Mullins and I soon agreed on a division of the work, his salary, and percentage of tuition, for outside work, soliciting patronage.

During the month of August, previous to school opening on first Monday in September, he and I canvassed McNairy and adjoining counties for boarding students and for families, with school-age children, to move to Selmer for school advantages.

The school outlook throughout the state had greatly improved within the last two or three years. Both state and counties had increased the tax levies for the benefit of schools.

In 1899, three years previously, the Tennessee Legislature had passed a Uniform Textbook Law, requiring all public schools in the state, to use a state-adopted list of books, in all grades of public school, for a five-year period. At close of each five-year period, a new selection, or the old, revised, was substituted.

This Uniform Law reduced the price of school books at least twenty-five per cent.

It also made it possible for pupils, shifting or moving to other schools or counties, to save great expense for new books.

At school opening, our first year, September, 1902, the enrollment was encouraging, better than we had expected. Several families had rented houses, and moved to Selmer, the most of whom brought two or three boarding students with them.

Our work during the first year, and all three following years, seemed very satisfactory. As to finances, we had done reasonably well.

Mr. Mullins proved to be a very congenial co-worker and a good schoolman.

At close of each year, we issued a large number of elementary certificates and several diplomas.

Aubrey received his high school diploma at the close of our third year in Selmer. From the day he entered school, when about six years of age, until he graduated from high school, he never attended any school where his father was not principal.

Aubrey read a great deal outside of school hours and during the summer vacations, for the most part juvenile adventure stories, which his parents frowned upon but did not forbid. The reading of these stories and the playing of baseball interfered at times with the more important school duties. However, he kept up his school work and was among the best students in his classes. In about his fifteenth year, he devoted several successive days to the writing of a story of adventure of his own conception. Some four or five chapters were completed before the flame of self-expression had consumed the available fuel. His mother carefully preserved the fragments, and has retained them for more than thirty years.

When about sixteen years of age, Aubrey commenced the study of short-hand under the guidance of his mother, and during my last year as principal of the Selmer High School, he was engaged in various local jobs, i.e., clerking in store, reading law, stenographic work in Wood & Barnhill's law office, and as general handy man for C. L. Haines, local produce and commission merchant.

In September of 1906, he entered the Southern Normal University at Huntingdon, Tennessee, but became dissatisfied and left before the completion of the school year, to accept a position in the law office of his uncle, Judge D. W. Broyles, at Savannah, Tennessee. While there, he was able to devote a substantial amount of his time each day to reading law, and at the same time he earned enough to meet his necessary expenses.

Having made up his mind to follow the legal profession as a career and being financially unable to bear the expense of a three year course in law at any acceptable law school, he then decided to improve his skill in short-hand to the extent where he could pass the civil service examination for stenographer and typist and secure a government job, with a view to using that as a stepping stone toward his goal. After a few months of intensive preparation, he took the civil service examination in stenography and typewriting in August, 1907, when he was eighteen years of age. In October, of that year, he received notice of his appointment to the Bureau of the Census in Washington, D. C.

After arriving in Washington, he enrolled in George Washington University Law School, as a night student, and obtained his degree (L.L.B.) from this University in February, 1912.

In March, 1912, he married Mary Elizabeth Moore, a Virginia girl, then living in Washington, and a member of the Church which Aubrey had joined, the M. E. Church, South, at Mount Vernon Place, Washington, D. C. In July, of the same year, they moved to Colorado, Aubrey having obtained a position in the U. S. Land Office at Montrose. In June, 1913, he passed the Colorado State Bar Examination with a relative standing of fourth in a class of about seventy five successful applicants. He then practiced law in Montrose from October, 1913, to June, 1917, when he returned to Washington, D. C., with his wife and two children (George Leadley and Eleanor).

In March, 1919, he was appointed District Counsel for the U. S. Reclamation Service, with headquarters at Mitchell, Nebraska. In October, 1920, he was transferred to a similar position on the Pacific Coast, with headquarters in San Francisco, California. In October, 1922, he returned to Washington, D. C., as Special Attorney for the Federal Trade Commission. For one term of Congress, 1925 to 1926, he was Assistant Legislative Counsel for the House of Representatives, and engaged in drafting proposed legislation for Congressional Committees. From 1927 to the present time he has been actively engaged as an attorney for the Government in the preparation for trial and trial of tax cases in various Federal Courts and before the Board of Tax Appeals. In connection with his work, he has been required to make numerous trips to the Pacific Coast, and one trip to China and the Philippine Islands. He is now (1938) Assistant Head of the Review Division in the office of the Chief Counsel, Bureau of Internal Revenue.

In July, 1906, after finishing four years at Selmer, we moved to Kenton, forty miles north of Jackson, on the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, in the southeast corner of Obion County.

I had already been elected principal of the Kenton High School for the following school year, through the influence of a former McNairy County pupil, E. T. Cantrell, who was then in the drug business at Kenton.

The town, with a population of ten or twelve hundred, was situated very near the Obion-Gibson County line. The school had been consolidated, including a school district from each county, with a total enrollment of three hundred and twenty eight.

The school building was a large two-story, partnership brick structure, the upper floor of which was owned and used by the Free Order of Masons, leaving for school use only five rooms on the lower floor. However, their elementary and high school courses were both very good, and the length of public school term for Obion County was eight months, and for Gibson County nine months.

The two counties financed salaries of all teachers during the free school terms, in proportion to their respective enrollments.

The school year was ten months, the latter part of which my salary was not guaranteed, yet I received all incomes from tuition, sufficient to meet my own salary in full, and the salaries of assistants who were retained to the close. Owing to crowded conditions, two class-rooms were added at close of the first year, which made the work much easier and more satisfactory.

We issued quite a lot of elementary certificates at the close of each year, and several high school diplomas. The first year, we had only three to complete the four-year work. The second year, we had a half-dozen, of which Mary C. Cox was one. The third year, we doubled again with one whole dozen.

Our final "Class Day" program had been well advertised, and all the town came out that night to see and hear. For lack of assembly hall of sufficient size, we erected a large Methodist camp meeting tent as a substitute.

Finis J. Garrett, then Congressman from that district, had promised to be with us and deliver the Class address.

However, some ten or twelve days before, he wrote me it would be impossible for him to get off from Congress at that particular date. I then secured Terry Abernathy, a very fluent, young lawyer of Selmer, Tennessee. Mr. Abernathy was there at the appointed time and gave us one of his most excellent addresses. In return we gave him a half-acre audience, a great ovation, and a few dollars with which to defray his necessary expenses.

As stated above, one among the six who completed the Kenton High School Course, at close of second year, was my daughter, Mary C. Cox. The following school year, she attended Radnor College, an institution located at Nashville, Tennessee, and was financed by her brother, Henry Aubrey, then in Government Service at Washington, D. C. At, or near, the close of the school year, she was given an excursion by the college, for a 30-day sight-seeing trip, together with one hundred or more class-mates and teachers, to the Mid-West and Far-West to the Pacific Coast.

After attending Radnor College, Mary equipped herself by special state examinations with both elementary and high school certificates, and became a pedagogue for four years in rural schools. She then assisted me for three years, one of which was at Bradford and the other two at Saltillo.

Her next move was to quit her father's occupation, take a civil service examination, and shift to Washington, District of Columbia, where her brother, Aubrey, was then living. Within a few days thereafter, she, too, became a Federal employee, in the Department of Labor, in June, 1918.

At the close of my third school year at Kenton, in 1909, I was undecided as to my future plans. My school work apparently had been satisfactory.

The two school boards, and the people in general, insisted that I stay for one more year, at least. My only reason for leaving was the lack of class-rooms, with no remedy in sight. The Masonic Society had refused to sell the upper story of the school building to the county, at a reasonable price, and the county had abandoned the purchase plan entirely.

We then moved from Kenton to Sharon, sixteen miles away, in Weakley County, and situated on the Illinois Central Railway, late in June, 1909. This town had a population of about one thousand, and at that time was having nine months of public elementary and high school terms.

The town had a fairly good brick school building, sufficient in size and in number of class rooms, though somewhat antiquated, and with some cracks in the walls. I had several well qualified, up-to-date assistants during my two years there, one of whom was a young man, Tansil Moore, a late graduate of Vanderbilt University; another one was B. A. Bruce, middle-aged, who became principal of Selmer High School a few years later.

The school board paid all assistants from public school funds for the entire nine months; and approximately eighty per cent of my salary, which was supplemented from funds paid by tuition students.

We had good schools the two years I was there.

Both the elementary and high school courses conformed to State requirements.

Tax levies for elementary and high schools, at that time, were being gradually increased all over the State.

We liked the Sharon people. They treated us well and took great interest in the school.

However, I shall make one exception: The Chairman of the school board, composed of six members, had opposed me at my first election and was unfriendly toward the school during my first year. I refused to accept the school for the second year unless the board would make some change in chairmanship. They, at once, made the necessary change.

During my two years at Sharon, I taught nine months each year in the Sharon School, and one month during each summer vacation as one of five Instructors in the County "Teachers' Institute". The attendance was usually about one hundred and fifty of the county teachers and some visitors.

At close of second year of the school, the building was condemned as unsafe, it having developed large cracks in the walls. However, the school board was making plans for the erection of a new building during the coming school year and to shift the school temporarily to a nearby church and other class-room buildings.

I was not pleased with these arrangements and decided to go elsewhere. Bradford, fifteen miles south of Sharon, the next available town on our circuit, had already offered me the school there for the coming year. I had also promised to give them an answer within the next week or ten days. Bradford was a business town and took very little interest in education. I, therefore, postponed my answer, in order to tour Oklahoma, in an effort to find an ideal school for the following year. However, I soon returned with no "olive leaf", as did "Noah's Dove" when sent forth from the Ark on its first mission. Right soon thereafter, we moved to Bradford.

Bradford was located on the Illinois Central Railway, in the eastern part of Gibson County, and had about 800 population. They also had a reasonably good brick school building, a good high school course of work, a nine-months term, and paid all teachers, including the principal, fair salaries for the nine months.

My daughter, Mary C. Cox, was my first assistant for that year.

Our total enrollment was approximately 150, the most of whom, however, were in elementary course. We had no high school work above the third year.

I was finally convinced that Bradford was not the ideal place for which I had been looking.

Mr. J. B. Cummings, County Superintendent of Schools of Gibson County, was at that time offering me the school at Dyer, another school in his county. Dyer was one of the largest towns in the county and was located on the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, fifteen miles west of Bradford, and twenty miles south of Kenton.

Dyer had a good up-to-date school, elementary and high; also nine-months terms every year, and paid all teachers, including the principal, fixed salaries - rather low - but sure pay. We moved there.

My salary was $110.00 per month which was not entirely satisfactory to me, since I was getting no outside supplement from tuition.

However, I accepted same and moved there late in June, 1912, for one year only.

Our school enrollment was large and the work was heavy. I did the work of two teachers, and had one very disagreeable spinster among my co-workers. Before the close of school, I made plans to leave North Tennessee and to try again the more sunny Southern Section. We had already finished our circuit, including four school towns within a radius of twelve miles in seven years, and had become a bit home-sick.

Adamsville, no doubt, had heard of our intentions to leave Dyer, for at this opportune time I received an unexpected letter from Dr. Hayes Abernathy of Adamsville, then Secretary of the school board.

He was wanting to know if we were ready and willing to return to Adamsville. His proposition was about as follows: We guarantee you as principal, and

Mrs. Cox, teacher of the primary department, $150.00 per month for a nine months' term in our new brick school building, the largest and best in McNairy County.

I accepted the offer on condition that I receive all income from over-school-age and boarding students.

We then moved from Dyer in June, 1913, to Adamsville.

Upon our return, we were delighted to meet again so many of our old friends and neighbors of by-gone days.

The school building was much larger, better and more conveniently planned, than I had expected; and was, by far, the best in which I had taught in Tennessee, up to that time.

It was well located, on high ground, and near the center of the scholastic population.

The school outlook had greatly improved within the last few years. State and county funds were sufficient then to finance long school terms. All elementary schools in the state were eight months, and many of the high schools were nine. The following are some of the State Legislative Acts of 1913: the available school funds were increased from one-fourth to one-third the total state revenues; a compulsory school attendance law; county boards of education were authorized to provide for transportation of all pupils to and from schools, where, and when, it seemed advisable; also an Act which required that all revenue left in the State Treasury on January 1st, of each year, must be transferred and become a part of the public school funds.

During our first year, we rented several residences, and when moving had become monotonous, we purchased a $1200.00 home from James Scott, son-in-law of our former neighbor-friend, Mrs. Boone.

Instead of touring the county for outside patronage, as had been my custom, I spent the last month, prior to school opening, in distributing school circulars and in making public talks at picnics, Sunday School conventions and Teachers' Institutes.

We opened school early in September, 1913, for a nine months' term. We had a large assembly hall, on second floor, and had five or six class-rooms below.

Our faculty of teachers were: Mrs. Cox, assisted by Mrs. London, for the primary and intermediate work; Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Pugh and I had all high school classes, together with the seventh and eighth grades.

The Music Department was under the management of Mrs. Freeling. Mrs. Freeling was one of the best in her profession. She had been with me, as teacher of music at Savannah (1885-1889), twenty-eight years previously.

Our total school enrollment for each of the three years was approximately two hundred. Local patronage was good. We also had several students from outside the district who paid tuition, making total receipts for each year very satisfactory.

Salaries of teachers were paid largely from county school funds.

We issued a large number of elementary certificates during the three years, and several high school diplomas the last two.

When we left Adamsville this time, in June, 1916, I had completed the unfinished four-year term I had promised on leaving there thirteen years before.

Our next move was to Saltillo, only eighteen or twenty miles away, in the northern part of Hardin County, on the west side of the Tennessee River.

I had taught there just one year, beginning in September, 1891. We remained there, this time, for a four-year term.

Saltillo's population was only four or five hundred, and her school enrollment was one hundred and fifty.

The school building was not large, yet it was sufficient to accommodate those attending; three-fourths of whom were in the grades during the first two years.

My assistants, while there, were the following: Miss Mary Kincannon, Miss Carry Holland, and my daughter, Miss Mary C. Cox.

Mrs. Mamie Wilkinson was in charge of our Music Department and gave lessons at her home, which was nearby.

We had a good number of boarding students, and several in attendance from outside of the school district.

The school term was nine months each year and salaries of all teachers, except music teachers, were paid largely from public funds.

For the four years, all told, we issued a large number of certificates; and several diplomas, the last three.

Our youngest son, James, took all of his elementary school work at Savannah, Adamsville, Clifton, Olive Hill, Selmer and Kenton. At Kenton, in June, 1907, he received the public school certificate. He then took high school work the following two years there, and one year at Sharon. Then, as a substitute for his fourth year high school, he preferred a business course. He first went to Cape Girardeau, Mo., but became dissatisfied and returned home at close of one month. He later took a three-months business course at Lexington, Ky., where he specialized in stenography and received a diploma, August 12, 1912. A few months later he took a civil service examination in stenography and typewriting at Nashville, Tennessee, from which he received an appointment to the U. S. Navy Yard, Charleston, S. C., which position he filled for approximately six years.

He was married, while in Charleston, to Miss Rita L. Beckman, and they have three sons - James Franklin, Rutledge Livingston and William Ashe.

In April, 1920, he resigned from the government service and returned to Tennessee, shortly before the close of my last school year at Saltillo. At that time, we were planning to move to our newly purchased farm, three miles south of Jackson, Tennessee. He went to the farm with us and became a farmer for one year. The following August, 1921, the year we moved to Gainesboro, he went to California.

He was in California for nineteen months, during which time he was in both government work and private employment.

In February, 1923, he received an appointment as stenographer-typist in the government service, Washington, D. C., as the result of a civil service examination taken in San Francisco, California.

Several months after he received his appointment to Washington, he transferred to the Canal Zone, Republic of Panama - which position he resigned from, nineteen months later, to accept private employment in Cartagena, Colombia, South America, and where he remained for approximately four years.

He returned to the United States in 1929, and has been in the employ of the government from April, 1929, to the present time.

Mildred, our youngest child, took her elementary school work at Kenton, Sharon, Bradford and Dyer; and received the eighth grade certificate at close of the Dyer school, June, 1913.

She then completed three years in high school at Adamsville; following which we moved to Saltillo, and, during our first year there, we had no fourth-year high school class. However, during that year, she took second and third year high school review work. The following three years, in succession, she attended the Memphis Conference Female Institute, at Jackson, Tennessee. The first year, she finished the fourth year high school course and took music. The second year, she took a business course and continued her lessons in music. The third year, financed by her uncle, Arch McDougal, she specialized in music. She then taught Music for one year; after which, she became a full-fledged pedagogue and taught school for five nine-months' terms, in succession; two years with James White, at Dowelltown, Tennessee; and three years in Selmer High School, the last year of which was with her father as principal.

On September 8, 1926, only a few months following her last year in school work, she married Floyd Corley, a farmer of DeKalb County, who, at that time, was living near Dowelltown. They continued to live there until his death, December 30, 1932. Soon, thereafter, Mildred, with her two children, Anne and Floyd, moved to Dowelltown. She recently purchased a home in Dowelltown and lives there at the present time.

At that time, June, 1920, I had taught school 33 years and had tried the grocery business two years at Marionville, Mo., and general merchandising for one year, at Olive Hill, Tenn., and was dissatisfied with each. I had recently bought a farm of 207 acres of land with residence on it, two miles south of Saltillo, at a cost of $2600.00.

We finally decided to try farm life but the farm we had recently purchased was not a desirable place to live. We then sold same to Arthur Hughes, a former pupil of mine, but who was, at that time, in the mercantile business at Saltillo.

We sold with the expectation of re-investing elsewhere.

At that time, Cornie Wilkinson and Charlie Ross, both former pupils of mine, were engaged in the real estate business at Jackson, Tennessee; and on hearing of my decision to purchase a farm home, came at once to my assistance. I bought from them a one-hundred acre tract of land, three miles south of Jackson, in Madison County, on a North-South State Highway, for forty-two hundred and fifty dollars, one-half cash.

The place was well equipped with buildings, consisting of one good six-room residence; two large barns; two tenant houses; one large floored building, suitable for storing buggies, wagons or automobiles; a large three-room well house; gasoline operated deep well pump; a new 15 by 30 foot brooder for chickens; also a large poultry house with wire enclosure.

There were sixty-five acres of tillable land on the place, with thirty-five acres in woodland.

We were planning to move there immediately after the close of school. Our son, James, went ahead to make necessary arrangements and preparations at the farm. We moved there the latter part of May, 1920.

We bought work horses, milk cows, pigs, and farming implements.

For a few months, James and I were real agriculturists. At times, we worked early and late. We rented fifteen to twenty acres of cotton land to a neighbor, and cultivated several acres ourselves. We had one acre each in Tomatoes, sweet potatoes, irish potatoes, and melons; also a few acres in corn and several acres in grass land.

We had expected a small income from the sale of butter and milk, but that failed to materialize; and, later, in the fall, prices of everything we had to sell tumbled, except cotton. We sold two bales of cotton for $200.00.

Our expenses thus far had been heavy and the outlook for adequate returns were very unfavorable. Our cash balance had become extremely low. I was somewhat discouraged as to conditions and, as a remedy for same, had made inquiry as to a school job.

Soon thereafter I was in touch and negotiating relative to two schools, one, the State University at Raleigh, North Carolina, as teacher of mathematics in the Agricultural Department, salary $1600.00; the other, a high school, located nine miles north of Jackson, Tennessee, salary $1200.00. The North Carolina school board had elected me, and were very insistent that I accept. However,

I refused same and accepted the smaller salary of the nearby school. I taught the nine months' term, beginning in September, 1920, and travelled back and forth daily for the first three weeks with horse and buggy, a distance of twenty four miles round trip. The school was known as Oakfield High School but was only so in name. I endeavored to make it "High" but was not very successful.

I had failed to ascertain the exact location of the Oakfield High School before the school opened. I expected to find it in Oakfield but upon my arrival there, the first morning of school, to my surprise, I was told that the school was one mile east of the railroad station. The town of Oakfield consisted of two stores, post office, railroad station, and several residences.

When I reached the school building at 8:30 a.m., I found it pretty well filled with sixty or seventy pupils, awaiting and expecting their new principal.

Within a few days, we had enrolled about seventy-five pupils and were moving along with our work smoothly. The building had a fairly large assembly hall and one good class-room. My assistant, a young lady, occupied the class-room with the primaries, and I used the assembly hall for my work.

After three weeks, we rented the home place for seven months and moved to Oakfield. Mildred, at that time, was in school at Jackson.

At the beginning of my last month at the Oakfield School, Capitola and James returned to the farm, taking with them the horse and buggy which I had used in going to and from school, which was located approximately one mile away.

I then found a very convenient boarding place within walking distance of the school.

On the closing day of school, we had several visitors, a short prepared program of recitations, declamations, and a few final remarks by two or three outsiders.

We issued a half-dozen secondary certificates but no diplomas.

The name, Oakfield High School, was certainly a misnomer, for that year at least.

After a few good-byes, so-longs, and farewells, I rushed off to my boarding place to get ready for the home-going.

Within a few minutes, James, with horse and buggy, came and took me back to the farm.

We continued to live on the farm for only a few months after the close of school, which was on or near May 15, 1921.

The $1200.00 I had received from school funds had helped very materially to replenish our depleted treasury; however, as to the advisability of a continuation on the farm or an immediate return to school work, the consensus of opinion strongly favored the latter. I then began inquiry for another school. Within a short time I was in communication with two or three high schools which were in need of teachers. I was put in touch with these schools through a "Teachers' Bureau".

This Bureau was often of great help to me in locating and getting in quick touch with good schools, and the charges were always reasonable.

I decided to negotiate with the school board of Gainesboro, Tennessee, the one which the Bureau had suggested that I write immediately and telling me that they were in need of a principal for Gainesboro Central High School, of Jackson County, and that they would pay the principal $200.00 per month, for a nine months' term.

Gainesboro was farther away than I liked, yet I thought it best to investigate.

It was almost 200 miles away; 100 miles east of Nashville, twenty-five or thirty miles north of the Tennessee Central Railway, and one mile south of the Cumberland River.

Double Springs and Cookeville, both on the Tennessee Central Railroad, were the nearest railway stations.

Soon, thereafter, I made a hurried run over to Gainesboro and talked school with the school board and with the county superintendent, Miss Estalle Galbraith, for several hours. I then signed a contract for a nine months' school, at a salary of $200.00 per month. The school was to begin on the first Monday in September, 1921. The school board also elected five assistant teachers: Messrs. Gaines and Beck for high school work, and Misses Myers, Smith, and Glisson for the elementary.

All teachers were paid from public funds and no one within the county was charged tuition.

Upon my return home, I soon disposed of the farm for $250.00 more than I had paid for it one year before.

I sold it to Wilkinson, Ross & Co., the same real estate company from whom I had purchased it, for $4500.00, the greater part of it on time notes.

They paid me $400.00 cash and gave four notes, secured by trust deed, of equal amounts, $650.00 each, and due respectively in one, two, three and four years, with interest at eight per cent. I transferred to the Company a $1500.00 Federal Farm Loan which, together with the $400.00 cash payment, left a balance of $2600.00 due me, to be paid in notes. All notes and interest were paid when due.

We moved from Jackson to Gainesboro the latter part of August, 1921, and at this time James left us to go to California. We shipped our household goods to Double Springs, 100 miles east of Nashville, on Tennessee Central Railroad.

Upon reaching Gainesboro, we rented a fairly good four-room residence, which had been reserved for us by the school board, and to which we moved at once. It was a house kept especially for the principal of the school.

We were very well pleased with the house and its location; also with the low rental charge.

The school building was conveniently located and sufficiently large to accommodate the school. We had an average attendance during my two year stay of almost two hundred.

The public schools of the State had been classified as A, B, and C schools respectively, four, three and two years high school work.

State school supervisors and inspectors made their rounds regularly, at least twice a year.

No high school teacher was allowed to teach more than eight classes daily nor permitted to teach subjects for which he was not properly certificated.

In the past I had often taken as many as fifteen classes daily, in emergencies, thereby saving the cost of at least one teacher.

Gainesboro was almost in the center of Jackson County, and was the county seat, with a population of about 1200.

The school was known as Central High School, and was the only "A" grade school in the county at that time.

The business part of Gainesboro was on level ground, but was almost enclosed by a half-dozen picturesque, cone-shaped mountains, rivaling in height the Washington Monument.

Health, in general, was good at Gainesboro; however, I had a few attacks of indigestion which were very annoying at times, yet I did not attribute my troubles to the place. My leaving there at the close of two years was more especially for the purpose of taking a rest.

Capitola and I had already agreed that when I quit teaching we would purchase property and live at Selmer.

While at Gainesboro, I heard much talk of the nearby "Redboiling Springs" as a health resort. They were located only a few miles northwest of Gainesboro, in Macon County. I took occasion to enjoy a little outing shortly before leaving Gainesboro and visited the place. I found lots of folks there for their health and some who were there for pleasure. The normal population of the place was small, yet at that time there were several hundred visitors.

There were several hotels and quite a number of boarding houses, all of which were crowded.

During my stay there, I often associated with an old acquaintance, D. W. Herring, who was there for his health. Mr. Herring was formerly a citizen and a prominent lawyer of Savannah, but at that time he and family were located in Jackson, Tenn. I was told that there were seven different springs included in the group, all of which were within a half-mile square. Each spring was claimed to be a sure cure for one or more particular ailments. I drank freely from the spring recommended for my trouble (indigestion) the greater part of the eight or ten days I was there but received very little, if any, relief. Mr. Herring had been there for several weeks and claimed to be very much improved. However, he passed away not long thereafter. Mr. Herring was a first cousin to Mr. D. W. Broyles.

As to my school work at Gainesboro, I enjoyed the two years work there. The town, in general, took great interest in the school. Our high school students were easily controlled and more biddable than in many places where I had taught.

At final closing in June, 1923, we had a very large attendance; in fact, the assembly hall was overflowing.

The high school students furnished a splendid program, largely by the graduates, which consisted of twelve or fifteen.

Following the program, we had a few good talks by visitors and patrons of the school, some of which were very complimentary to the teachers.

The last talk was made by a young attorney of the town, in which he presented to the principal of the school a very much appreciated gold fountain pen, given by the graduating class.

I still use the pen in my correspondence and am thereby often reminded of my Gainesboro class of 1923.

The County Superintendent, Miss Galbraith, and the County Board of Education, insisted that I try them at least one more year.

I was almost persuaded.

In fact I did make them a promise that, after a one year rest and recuperation, I might return. However, we moved from there to Selmer, McNairy County. We, at once, purchased a $1750.00 home, and repaired same at an additional cost of $1200.00.

We then had a very satisfactory six-room home, at which we continued to live for the following nine years.

Approximately one year after our move to Selmer, I received a telegram from the County Superintendent of Jackson County, Miss Galbraith, offering me a salary of $2200.00 to come back to Gainesboro for the coming school year; which was $400.00 more than my former salary there.

It was a very tempting proposition, yet I did not accept it for the reason that I had already accepted class-room work in the Selmer High School and had bought a home in Selmer.

In taking class-room work, I was relieved of much responsibility in school discipline and management, and also of the supervision of outside baseball and football activities.

General supervision of the Selmer School at this time had become pretty heavy. A separate grade school building had just been erected on one end of the school campus, at which there were at least one hundred and fifty pupils. The Principal of the high school was expected to have general supervision over both schools.

In my class-room work, each class was sent to me from the study-hall, and returned at close of a 45-minutes period. Class-room work was light as compared with the duties of principal. While there I tried each. The first year I rested, recuperated slightly, and raised chickens. This was the year when Mr. Bruce of Sharon was principal of Selmer High School. He had been my assistant when I taught at Sharon. The next year I took class-room work in the school at a salary of $155.00 per month. The next year I was elected principal and received a salary of $200.00 per month.

I then shifted back to class-room work and kept at it until I closed my forty-four years in school teaching, which was May 15, 1932.

The Selmer school was an "A" Grade, first class high school, with a splendid faculty of nine or ten teachers, all of whom were paid fair salaries from public school funds.

The grade school, consisting of the first six grades, continued for eight months, and the high school, together with the seventh and eighth grades, for nine months.

At our final commencement, as usual, the assembly hall was well filled. We had a large graduating class and a well prepared program.

Following the program and just before dismissal, I ventured my farewell talk, of two or three minutes, to patrons and students. Then Mr. W. K. Abernathy, lawyer and editor of the McNairy County Independent, came quietly to the front, with a very attractive gold-headed walking cane in his hand; and following a very short and appropriate talk, he presented said cane (which had been purchased by students, teachers, and citizens), to a retiring pedagogue, Henry Jefferson Cox.

I was, at that time, seventy two years of age and am now seventy-eight. I still use the cane, depend upon it when walking, and am thereby often reminded of the Selmer people.

When we moved to Selmer in 1923, Capitola and I were hoping that it would be our last move. We had sought a location accessible by railway, for our children to visit us.

However, a few months before the close of my last year of teaching at Selmer, we decided to rent or sell the Selmer home and move to the farm over in Hardin County, but with no expectation of farming.

The farm consisted of two hundred acres of land, a large part of which was tillable. The farm was a legacy from the estate of my wife's father, and on which there was a four-room residence, a good barn, and other out-buildings. We were renting the place at that time to a nephew, W. A. Harvey.

We, however, were planning to repair the residence and add three new rooms, thereby making sufficient room for two small families.

We were expecting to live there, among relatives, and enjoy a few years more of quiet country life.

Two or three weeks before the time we were to move there, our children, Aubrey, Mary, and James, all then living and working in Washington, D. C., had made counter plans, which were intended to frustrate ours. As a representative and advocate of same, James came from Washington to Selmer and was very insistent that we change our plans and move to Washington, so that father, mother, one daughter and one son might once more all live together.

The plan appealed to us and within a few days we were all busy packing and crating household goods and books for shipment to Washington, D. C.

I sold the home place at Selmer, largely on time, for $2000.00 to E. S. Martin, principal of the school. He transferred to me, in partial payment, $300.00 in school warrants, which I cashed some months later, and for the remainder gave two notes, secured by trust deed on the property, of equal amounts, due in one and two years, with interest. I had reserved two lots from the place and sold same for $700.00 cash.

In order to accommodate Mr. Martin and family, we vacated the house hurriedly for his convenience, and to our inconvenience, within three days after the close of school. However, he failed to meet his notes, when due. I finally re-sold to Troy Brooks for $1810.00 cash.

We sent two or three truck loads of household goods and books over to the farm for storage. The household goods and books, which we had decided to bring to Washington, were delivered to the Railway Company that same day for shipment by freight.

After which, we called, by phone, our fellow townsman, Mr. Hester, to come by with his Ford and take Capitola, James and myself over to the farm in Hooker's Bend, a distance of somethirty or thirty-five miles. While there for three or four days only, we visited all the Kin in that Section.

James then lost us and returned to Washington. Capitola and I went to Savannah and visited at the home of her sister, Mrs. D. W. Broyles, who visited us and other Kin here in Washington three years thereafter. After a short visit of only four or five days at Savannah, we took passage on a Grayhound bus to Chattanooga, Tenn., at which place we spent the night and following day at the home of my wife's niece, Mrs. Mary C. McDougal White. We had not seen Mary or her husband, James, for several years. They had bought a nice home there. We came by rail from Chattanooga to Washington, arriving at Union Station, May 27, 1932, at 12:30 p. m. ~~May 27, 1968.~~

Aubrey, Elizabeth and Mary, with car, were at the station awaiting our arrival. They took us out for lunch to a nearby cafeteria, and from there to the Plymouth Apartment Building, 1236 Eleventh Street, N. W. The Plymouth was a very large, seven-story building, with many apartments.

Elizabeth's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Doyle, occupied a large apartment on the first floor.

Mrs. Doyle is a sister of Elizabeth's mother, Mrs. Samuel Moore. Mr. Doyle is an ex-life insurance man of twenty or twenty-five years service and is now retired.

Our apartment, which had been selected by Mary, was located on the third floor. The household goods and books which had been shipped from Selmer had been received, unpakced, and arranged in the various rooms of the apartment, together with some new furniture.

Capitola and I were well pleased with the general appearance of our domicile and were delighted on seeing it ready for occupancy. We slumbered, slept, and rested therein, our first night at home, in Washington, D. C.

For all this previous preparation, we give Mary, Aubrey, Elizabeth and James the full credit.

The Plymouth House Apartment was our home for one year only.

We were not in any way dissatisfied with the apartment except that we felt the need of one more room than we had there.

We moved next to the Leamington, 2503 14th Street, N. W., and occupied a six-room apartment on the third floor. We liked the apartment; also the self-operated elevator; yet for various reasons we became dissatisfied, and moved from there at the end of seven or eight months to the Byron Building, nearby, on the opposite side of same street, 2548, and secured a six room apartment on the second floor, where we lived for approximately one year.

At first we were much pleased with the place. However, we moved away rather abruptly for what we considered a sufficient reason. During the rainy season the kitchen roof leaked badly.

We later moved to the Tulane, 2109 18th Street, N. W., and occupied another six-room apartment, on second floor, for a period of 18 or 20 months.

By this time we had become dissatisfied with apartment life and decided to get out in the suburbs, where we are now located. We have a home now which is far enough away from the city to be free from traffic noise and yet we have fairly good transportation facilities. We also have a small garden patch, too much of a lawn to mow, etc., but we like it.

We have six rooms, with modern conveniences, basement, garage, etc.

BALLARD COX.

The Civil war between the states ended nearly fifty years ago. The passions and bitterness that conflict stirred up have to a large extent been healed by the passage of the years. No one now wishes to stir up the embers of that dead and buried strife, and in many celebrations of the events of those days we have seen the old veterans who so manfully fought each other for four long years, marching side by side, and keeping step to the same music. And it can truly be said that no other nation in history, ever fought a civil war, after which the participants in that war became friends again, during the same generation which did the fighting. It is one of the crowning glories of American citizenship that this is so.

Nevertheless, while today all is friendship between the former opponents, it is only justice to the men who risked all for the principles in which they believed, that when any one of them has behind him a record of more than ordinary bravery, or service, or suffering, his story should be recorded. Not for purposes of stirring up hard feeling, but simply that those who come after may know something of what it cost to save the Union, and make this a great united nation. Especially what it cost some individual men.

With that object in view, the writer is going to tell, somewhat in detail, the story of the life of the man whose name stands at the head of this sketch. Ballard Cox was born on the Cumberland river, in Pulaski county, Kentucky, on December 28, 1828. He was the son of William and Mary (Clear) Cox. The father of William Cox was Jacob Cox, who at an early day moved his family, together with twelve other families, from Virginia, and formed a settlement in the Cumberland valley, at a beautiful spring. The Cox family is of old Irish ancestry, while the parentage of the Clears was of German extraction. Jacob Cox, as his son after him, was a pioneer farmer. That little colony in the woods of the Cumberland did not raise much wheat. As a matter of fact those sturdy old pioneers hardly reckoned wheat as the proper food for strong men! It was corn bread that won the American wilderness from the Atlantic to the Pacific! On this homely fare Jacob Cox raised a family of four boys, and three girls. Life was not as strenuous in those days as it has since become. The woods swarmed with game, and at the same time the hogs of the settlers ran at large and grew into pork at no cost or care to their owners. The rivers were alive with fish, and it is of record, that Jacob Cox was a mighty fisherman, and that he spent many happy days along the banks of the streams, and brought home many a fine string. He was a genial, whole-souled man, a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and a republican in his politics. He died in Pulaski county, Kentucky, near Somerset.

His son, William, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in old Virginia, before the migration of the family to Kentucky. He married Mary Clear at the old home place in Kentucky, and here were born to him and his wife, a family of the good old fashioned size, eight boys and two girls. He lived to the ripe old age of eighty-four years, and is buried in a cemetery about one and a half miles west of Marionville. Those of his family who survive are four sons: Ballard, subject of this sketch; Jake, who lives in northwestern Kansas; Daniel W., living at Weaubleau, Hickory county, Missouri, and Brant, who is a resident of Columbus, Cherokee county, Kansas. Three of the brothers served in the Union ranks during the Civil war: James, who died in the second year of the conflict, the day after the battle of Nashville; Ballard and Daniel. James, who died as above stated, was only sixteen years old when he enlisted in the Union army. Ballard Cox had but the scantiest opportunities of schooling. The scattered settlements of eastern Kentucky in his boyhood, afforded but little chance for the learning which is obtained from books. When only fourteen years old the lad left home, and began life for himself as the assistant of a trader, staying with this man four years, most of which time he spent in the saddle. Mr. Cox recalls with much enjoyment the recollection of his first ventures as a trader. First he bought a horse for $40.00, and before it had come time to give the beast his first feed under his new ownership, the boy had sold him for $150.00. That encouraged the young man to do better, so next time he picked up a horse for $20.25, and very shortly sold him for $160.00. Surely Mr. Cox made no mistake in adopting the business of a trader!

On October 8, 1851, Mr. Cox married Miss Emzy Price, a daughter of William Price, and a native of the old county in Kentucky, where the marriage took place. To this union were born a family of four boys and four girls. Of these only one son and three daughters survive. The son is William G. Cox of Joplin, Missouri. The daughters are Sarah Frances (McKinley) of Aurora; Elizabeth (Adams), also of Aurora; and Estella (Wolf), the wife of a Frisco machinist, of Springfield, Missouri. Mrs. Cox, the wife and mother, passed away in April, 1907, at the age of seventy-two years, and three months. She sleeps in the Odd Fellows' cemetery in Marionville.

When the storm of the Civil war broke out Ballard Cox was the father of a little family of three children. If any man could claim exemption from the duties of a soldier it would seem as if he might have done so. But this man did not ask to be exempted. He was for the Union with all his soul, and cost what it might he proposed to do his part towards its salvation. So we find him enlisting in the Union army at Somerset, Kentucky. Those were perilous times in the Kentucky mountains. There was a large and active southern element, who knowing of the gatherings of Union men, announced that that element would never be allowed to drill. With another gallant spirit, Charlie Zackerie, Mr. Cox gathered together a little band of eighty-five men, and they made him leader of the company.

Ammunition was quietly smuggled in from Louisville, and the first the rebel element knew, the men who were not to be allowed to drill were attacking them. However, the southerners were in a vast majority, having some two thousand men by this time, and the little group of Union men fell back to Somerest, on the Cumberland river, some six miles from their first attacking point. Here they found a strong Union force, and enlisted, first as Company A of the Twelfth Kentucky Regiment. In this command, they fought no less than four battles within plain hearing of their homes. Imagine the feelings of the wives and mothers, not yet used to the perils of war, as they heard the echo of the cannon, and the rattle of the musketry among the hills!

The Confederates here occupied what could be termed a natural fortress, while their opponents had no shelter except their army tents. One morning Colonel Fry, of the First Kentucky, ordered a charge against the southern cavalry. In that charge General Zollicoffer, the Confederate commander, was slain. As he fell from his horse, a magnificent black animal, Colonel Fry seized the animal and vaulted into the saddle. After the war closed Mr. Cox met Colonel Fry in Cincinnati, Ohio, and he was still riding the horse he took as prize of war, that morning so many years before.

For the first three years of the conflict Mr. Cox served continuously in the region around his home. After that, for the remainder of the conflict, he was to see service at widely distant points, and in different branches of the service. During his first three years he had served three months in the cavalry, and the remainder of the time in the infantry. He had taken part in the siege of Vicksburg, had been on Maryland Heights, at Harper's Ferry, in Old Virginia, and now was ordered to Indiana, and from here was sent to the coast and served three months on a gun boat, on which he was in active service up and down the Atlantic coast. Then back to Indiana, where he was assigned to the Eleventh Indiana Infantry, Company D. He had three terms of enlistment, the first for three months; the second for three years; and the third for three years or the war. He was mustered out at Baltimore, Maryland, and received his honorable discharge at Indianapolis, Indiana.

While in the service, in one of his many battles, Mr. Cox received a bullet directly through the body, striking him in the center of his abdomen. Such a wound is always called fatal by the surgeons, and they did not hesitate to pronounce their verdict that death was inevitable and near at hand. But the iron frame and hardy health, resulting from years of hard out door labor, stood Mr. Cox in good stead, and in spite of the doctors' death sentence he lived. No less than forty-seven times during the years since he was wounded has he been under the surgeon's knife. His case is so remarkable that he is known to the surgical calling throughout the United States. No other such case of remarkable vitality is on record, and he lives today as the most remarkable example of survival of a fatal injury. When those who are younger, are inclined to belittle the sufferings of the men who saved the Union, they would do well to recall this case, of this man who was struck down in the prime of manhood, and who for nearly half a century has borne such sufferings as rarely fall to human lot.

During the war Mr. Cox moved his family to Indiana and lived there ten years. After that he moved to Missouri, settling in Buck Prairie township, in Lawrence county, where he stayed two years. Then, crippled as he was, and compelled to crawl on his hands and knees, he drove all over Kansas, and finally settled there for six years. Then once more back to Missouri and lived on the old McCullah farm, west of Marionville, for two years. After that, twenty-two years ago he moved into Marionville. Here he still owns a beautiful home, situated upon six lots, and is also the owner of a twenty-seven acre farm some two miles west of Marionville.

Mr. Cox has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church since 1865 and in his politics is a staunch republican. With his war record it is not to be wondered that he is, and always has been prominent in the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic. In that organization he has served as commander, and has always taken a leading part. Marionville, Lawrence county and all Missouri is proud to honor Ballard Cox and have him one of their number and in the front rank.

ELLIS N. HENDRIX.

That Lawrence county can produce good and useful citizens right from the ground up on her own native soil, is fully evidenced by the life and works of Ellis N. Hendrix, who was born and raised on the farm where he now lives. He was born October 8, 1856. He is the seventh child of Andrew and Tempa (Williams) Hendrix who were raised in Bedford county in middle Tennessee on a typical Tennessee farm. They came to Lawrence county direct from Tennessee in 1840 and settled on a fine tract of 160 acres which they improved and upon which they lived to the day of their death. The father passed away in October, 1892, and the mother followed in May, 1895. Both were well known and held in the highest esteem by everyone. They were among the first families to settle in Lawrence county. They had seven children, of whom William died while in the Civil war; four others, Elijah, Harriett, Andrew Jackson and John are dead. LaFayette is living in Lawrence county and Ellis N. is living on the old home place where he has lived from his birth. At the age of about 35 years Ellis N. Hendrix was united in marriage to Lillian Jeffries, who was born February 21, 1868, and raised in Missouri, being the daughter of J. Marshall and Rebecca Ann (Shanning) Jeffries. To this estimable couple there were born seven children as follows:

Dear Sirs;

I am trying to do some research on the following people who were my Great-Great Grandfather and Grandmother. They are

COX, William F. Born 19 Nov 1799 in "Virginia" and
CLARE(Claire) Maria(h) Born 8 Feb 1808 in "Virginia"

This couple was married on 24 Nov. 1825 in Somerset, Pulaski Co., Ky. and had born to them there the following children: Marcellus C.(1826); Wm. Perry(1827); Ballard(1829); Jacob(1832); Sciotha(1835); Daniel Winford(1840); Elizabeth(1846); John Brent(1849); and sons James(no date, listed as killed in Civil War); and Frank(Franklin?) (no date-died ca 1860)

William Cox and his wife lived in Pulaski County until 1873 when they moved to Southwest Missouri. A Henry Jefferson Cox, son of Wm. Perry, wrote a history of the family up to 1940 which has circulated widely among family members, but only recemtly when I made contact with a Grandaughter of John Brent did I receive the clue that Maria(h)'s name was CLARE--she is one of 4 boys and 3 girls born to Thomas CLARE. They were Allin, Daniel, Thomas, and James--the girls Elizabeth, Rachel, and Maria(h). Rachel married an Allen Cox 6 July 1822. Perhaps he was a brother to the William F.(or F. William?) who married Maria(h). This relative found the marriage information in the 2-volume set of Pulaski Co., Ky. Mar. Records 1797-1863

My Great-Grandfather, Jacob COX, married Sarah STARNES (STARNS) in Pulaski Co. on 4 Oct 1852. To them were born Isabelle(1853-4); Joel(1856); George(1859); Mollie(1861) and James Mitchell(1864). In the fall of 1864 the family moved to Fillmore, Ind. where 6 more children were born. In 1884 they moved to Turon, Ks. With the exception of my Grandfather, James Mitchell COX, the entire family lived, married, and died in that vacinity. My Grandfather, on a trip to Missouri to visit a cousin, Lucy Cox Britain, daughter of Marcellus, met married her sister-in-law Amanda Britain, and remained in Republic, Mo. raising a son, Lester E. and daughter, Ethel Mae.

My father, Lester E., was a dynamic man, extremely successful in business, and considered himself so "self-made" that he never mentioned his Father's family in Kansas. Only recemtly have I made contact with them and had a delightful visit and seen the Neola, Ks. cemetery where are buried Marcellus Cox(who died on a visit there) Jacob and Sarah Cox, and their childred Isabelle, Joel, George, Evaline, Della Mae, Mollie and their spouses and many offspring. Emaline was burned to death in Indiana, and Charles Eddie and William Leroy must have been infant deaths.

None of the family in Turon, Ks. seem to know anything about Sarah STARNES(or STARNS)except that she was born 25, Dec., 1826. The only other clue I have to William F. COX(or F. William) is that he had two brothers Jake(Jacob?) and Squire. They were said to have moved to Indiana, and I have found in the Putnam Co., Ind. Census of 1840 a Jacob P. COX, and in the 1850 both JacobP. and Squire A. COX.

The 1850 Pulaski Co. sensus lists COX, William and COX, Allen J. they could be the brothers who married Rachel and Maria(h) CLARE(Claire) It also lists STARNS,John-same 006 Sommerset listing as William, and he could be Sarah's Father. She would be 24 and not yet married.

Kentucky 1810 census shows COX,Allen p2(Pulaski)-137-17 and Clair, Allen p2-132-line 13 ---these could be the parents of William and Maria(h) although the name I was given for her Father was Thomas, with an older brother, Allin who married Lear Foley 18 Dec. 1810.

Circuit Court Minute Book of Sommerset show Daniel CLARE as Jailer 26-Oct 1815. Later he and his wife Maria, and son Frank moved to Lawrence Co-1865.

I have gotten a lot of Census references here in Manhattan, KS. at the Riley County Genealogical Society, but there is a National Archive for records in Kansas City, and my son lives in Denver where he is also helping. I am enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and would like to know where to write and what fees to send to get land records--I find Kentucky Land Grants for William, Ballard, and Allen J. all in Pulaski Co., watercourse Pittman Creek, and also Warrants for William surveyed 6/29/ 1825 Book T, p. 157. Perhaps these could lead me farther back. I would also like to join your Society if you would tell me your dues, and appreciate another source leads you might suggest. Perhaps others have done work on the COX, STARNES(STARNS) and CLARE(CLAIRE) families--I'd be happy to hear from them.

Thank you for your help.

Sincerely,

Virginia Cox Bussey
(Mrs. Lynn E.)

William COX is listed in the family history as farmer and teacher.

Chapter 4

. . . EARLY SETTLERS AND FAMILIES . . .

COX

William Cox married Mary Hoff, and their son James Cox married Sallie Lester. To James and Sallie was born John Cox, their only son, on November 12, 1804. He married Catherine Hughes, daughter of John and Sabra Hardester Hughes.

Mrs. John Cox (Catherine Hughes) was a sister of Mariah Hughes (married William Love, 1832) and of Sabra Hughes (married Joshua Thurman). Sabra was born September 24, 1818. Joshua Thurman, a brother to Joseph Thurman, was the son of Benjamin and Lucy Richardson Thurman. Mrs. John Hughes (Sabra Hardester) was most likely a sister of Polly Hardester, daughter of Benjamin Hardester, as John Hughes was on the bond for the marriage of Polly to Thurston Clough on August 12, 1809.

To John and Catherine Hughes Cox were born four children: Cyrenius, dying when young; Jefferson Cox, born 1829, married Amanda Goggin Fitzpatrick; James Madison Cox, born 1831, married Elizabeth Hampton (Kempton?); Francis Marion Cox, born 1838, married Martha Ann Zachary, daughter of John Vaughan and Pamelia Porter Zachary.

To Jefferson Cox were born: Catherine, John William, George Washington, Mary Florinda, and Daniel Webster Cox. To John William and Leona Barnett Cox were born Amanda Jane Cox (Mrs. W. C. Owens); William Jefferson Cox; and Daniel Harrison Cox.

To James Madison Cox were born: Mariah (Mrs. James King Wesley); Kate Cox (Mrs. James Hines); Henry Cox; Sally Cox; and John Cox.

Dear Jerri,

Thanks so very much for the information you sent on both the COX and NEELY line. I am enclosing a little something for you to thank you for your time and effort on my behalf.

The deed made between the heirs of Elias COX, deceased, and Samuel Lane is certainly one proof that Elias and Prudence COX were the parents of John L. COX who married Rutha NEELY. I had noted Prudence COX in the census records and wondered who her husband had been. Prudence is a name carried down in my COX line. Any other information you might find on Elias and Prudence COX would be most appreciated. On the family group sheet I sent you on John L. and Rutha COX shows that they named their second son Elias Green (sometimes Elias Greenberry). Could Prudence's maiden name have been GREEN/GREENBERRY?

In the Pulaski Co. Circuit Court document reporting the sale of land first patented by Isaac NEELY on June 11, 1841, it appears that R. N. Neeley's heirs & c (most probably heirs and children) were being sued by Jane and William Hail. Since Jane and William Hail were listed among the heirs & c, they were possibly disputing the sale of the land to O. H. Waddle, W. G. Bright and J. W. Hail. Perhaps earlier court proceedings would shed more light on the question of the heirs & c. As this particular document reads, it is not really clear whether or not the persons listed are all children of Robert NEELY or whether some of them may be his sisters and/or brothers. I would appreciate it if you would send me your reading of the names of the heirs. I am not familiar with the family names in Pulaski County and some of the surnames are difficult to make out.

Were you able to find Isaac NEELY's will? It is listed as being in Book 5 (1860) on pages 469 and 471 in the Index to Wills by the Pulaski Co. Historical Society. Did Robert Harrison have a will or a probate file? Such will and/or probate records would certainly help establish the children of Isaac and the children of Robert H.

I would like to receive information on membership in the Pulaski Co. Historical Society as well as publications.

I realize how busy you are -- especially at this time of the year, too -- but if you get the chance to do any more research, any records you might come across on my lines would be of interest to me.

I have direct access to only to records in Jackson Co., IL and will check those for the names you sent. I will also inquire as to sources available for Massac and Douglas Cos. through the Illinois State Archives, Illinois State Genealogical Society, and the Genealogical Society of Southern Illinois.

I don't get the chance to do much research in person. We live in Cook Co., IL about 30 miles northwest of Chicago having moved here from Jackson Co., IL in the southern part of the state about 17 years ago. I started this hobby when I quit work to have my first child back in 1973. It gave me something to do besides wash diapers, etc. Of course, most all my research had to be done by mail except for the week or so during the summers when I visited my parents in Jackson Co., IL. Now, however, I have traced all my lines into other states previous to their moves to Illinois and am again having to rely on the mail to get information. I really appreciate your willingness to share information.

My daughter Stephanie is a freshman in high school and my son Scott is in the 6th grade. My husband David works for Social Security in downtown Chicago at the Regional Offices that serve the 5 states of Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa. I am a substitute teacher and usually work two or three days per week on the average. I am also the choir director at the Golf Road Baptist Church where we are members.

I wish you a Happy Holiday Season and a most blessed Christmas. Also, best wishes for the New Year.

Regards,

Joan

Dear Sirs-

I am a descendent of two Pulaski families, Mercer and Cox. I have the line of Nathaniel Mercer from the time of their coming to America to the present. I have the line of Robert Cox who married Rebecca Mercer in Sept 1810 in Pulaski Co.

What I do not have is the name of Nathaniel Mercer's wife, the name of all his children. Those I have are Nancy Married John Caldwell, Rebecca married Robert Cox, Nicholas, Thomas and Richard. I understand that there was one more. Is that one John Mercer who married Ann Caldwell? Do you have any of this information which I need? Nathaniel Mercer came into Pulaski through Tennessee, Washington and Jefferson Counties. We have the record of the Commissioners settlement of his estate. He died in the 1820s.

All we know of Robert Cox is that he married Rebecca Mercer in Sept 1810, (Pulaski marriage record.) They had one son, the only child we know of. We understand that Robert died young. Their son Nathaniel Mercer Cox went to Jackson Co Tenn, when young. We do not know whether his mother went with him or not. I never heard her spoken of by the family. We would like to know who Robert's father and mother were, his brothers and sisters, when he died and with what type of sickness, accident etc,

I notice in your Book II of marriage records of Pulaski Co (pp 138) the marriage of one Jacob Cox Jan 1 1820 to Roanna Tunnelson, with his parent Nathaniel Cox signing for him. Who is this Nathaniel Cox? Could he be Roberts father? Since Robert named his son Nathaniel Mercer Cox I just wonder.

I am sending you $ 3.00 for your help and an enclosed self addressed envelope. If you find anything and I owe you any more write me.

We have the complete family record of this Nathaniel Mercer Cox and his wife Eliza Cason we would be glad to share with you if you would like to have it. My mother was the grandaughter of Nathaniel Mercer Cox and Eliza Cason. They lived in Jackson County Tenn.

I certainly will appreciate any help you can give me.

Yours truly,

I certainly did appreciate the marriage record of Robt Cox & Rebecca Mercer you sent me. Also the Jacob Cox one. I have no idea whether they are related or not. We understand that Robt. Cox died young and that Nathaniel Mercer Cox, his son and our great grandfather went with his Mercer relatives to Jackson County Tenn. We do not know if his mother went with him or not.

When I can type the records I will sent you the family record of Nathaniel Mercer Cox's decendants. It might help some one else.

I would like to have a copy of The Tennessee Cousins, where could I get one? We are decendents of James Cason, Marvel Lowe, Jas Tompkins Quarles, Isaac Anderson Smith all with pioneer roots in Tenn. Maybe I could find some of these lines in it.

The only other person you might help me with is who the wife of

Cundiff

Winifred Cundiff (4Jul1762-) was the dau of Richard Cundiff and Mary Brown. She m John C Dallis l 22Oct1782 in Bedford Co VA.

Richard Cundiff (-10Oct1774 Bedford Co VA) was the son of Richard Cundiff and Mary. On 28Feb1712/1713 he was named in the will of his grandfather Richard Cundiff, and was given land in Northumberland Co VA. On 1Jan1724/1725 he was given entail of family lands and was an executor for the will of his father Richard Cundiff of Northumberland Co VA. On 26Jun1764 he was identified as of Fauquier Co VA when he purchased land at Richardson's Mill Creek in Bedford Co VA, and on 26Mar1765 his brother Jonathan Cundiff was a witness when he purchased another 404A. He m Mary Brown, and their children were named in the Rev War pension application of his son John:

- Benjamin (23Aug1748-) m Mary Nichols
- George (25May1751-) m Dinah Ayers
- Nancy (30Mar1754-1May1832 Bedford Co VA) m Rev John Ayers
- John (14Jan1757-18Apr1837 Hardin Co KY) m Sarah
- Elijah (10Jun1759-) m Jemima
- Winifred (4Jul1762-) m John C Dallis
- Hannah (21Mar1764 Bedford Co VA-)
- Joyce (18Sep1766 Bedford Co VA-) m Hatten Price
- Elisha (20Jun1769 Bedford Co VA-) m Elizabeth Price
- Levice (21Mar1772 Bedford Co VA-)
- Charlotte (21Mar1764 Bedford Co VA-) m William White

Richard Cundiff (d 20Jul1726 Northumberland Co VA) was the son of Richard Cundiff. On 28Feb1712 he was named in his father's will, and given much of the land. He married Mary. His will of 1Jun1724/1725 in Northumberland Co VA mentioned his wife and named his children:

- Isaac (1706 VA-)
- Richard (d 10Oct1774 Bedford Co VA) m Mary Brown
- Catherine
- John (d Lancaster Co VA) m Mary Ann __
- Jonathan (d 1775 Bedford Co VA) m Mary Ann Maddox Squires
- Viley m John Bowing

Richard Cundiff may have been the immigrant ancestor. On 10Dec1681 he conveyed 50A in Northumberland Co VA to John Brown. He made his will 28Feb1712, naming his two children. He died 1723 at Northumberland Co VA after making his will 28Feb1712. His children were:

- Ealce m Dennis? Conery
- Richard (d 20Jul1726 Northumberland Co VA) m Mary

Generation No. 1

1. JESTER1 COX was born 1750. He married SARAH SALLY COLE, daughter of JAMES COLE.

Notes for JESTER COX:
The Following Cox Coxe, & Cocke familys were pioneers of Virginia of record however no relationship has been established except it is believed that Jester & Jacob were brothers.
Col. Charles Cox, Jester Cox, Jacob Cox, and David Cox, William I, and William II came later.

In 1797 Jester Cox Sr. gave gifts of land to his 2 children and moved to Kentucky.
Jacob Cox was believed to be a brother of Jester who also had land on Glade Creek which he sold September 9, 1797 to Joseph Wilson and also moved to Kentucky.

At this writing no records have been found to indicate where Jester came from or who his parents were.
He first appeared in Fincastle Co. Va. in September 7, 1773 to appraise the estate of William Cochran Decd.
He next appeared in Montgomery Co. Va. April 3, 1782 asking to be paid for meat taken by the Militia.
Next he appeared in Washington Co. Va. December 9, 1785, Surveyed for Jester Cox 100 acres in Washington Co. by virtue of a Virginia Land Office Treasury Warrant #19650 lying on the waters of Glade Creek a branch of Powell River.
He also received a 2nd survey on the same warrant north branch of Powell River.

The above info was taken from a book titled Early Settlers of Lee County Virginia, and Adjoining Counties,

A Jester Cox also appeared on the 1790 Russell Co. Va. Tax roll.

Jester Cocke apparently moved to Wayne Co. Ky. as many records of land transactions reside there. I have records from the 1817,s thru 1830.
Its still strange that he does not appear on any Census for these periods.

Children of JESTER COX and SARAH COLE are:

2. i. JESTER2 COXII, b. 1773, Virginia.
ii. REBECCA COX, m. JAMES FITZGERALD.

Notes for REBECCA COX:
The Fitzgeralds also left Lee Co. Va. and nothing more is known, but it is believed that they followed Rebecca's father to Kentucky..

Generation No. 2

2. JESTER2 COXII (JESTER1) was born 1773 in Virginia. He married (1) MARY (POLLY) ???. He married (2) CINTHA ???.

Notes for JESTER COXII:
At this time i am still searching for info as to how Jester arrived in Clark Co. Ar. and where he was during the 20 years prior. 1800/1820.
Also would like to know who raised his son Elisha.

6. ELISHA ROBERT WYNN4 COX (ELISHA J.3, JESTER2, JESTER1) was born May 03, 1829 in Green Hill, Lee County Virginia, and died January 12, 1915 in Powell County Kentucky. He married (1) SUSAN JANE PITMAN April 08, 1852, daughter of MICAJAH PITMAN and NORMA ???. He married (2) MARY WYNN CRABTREE June 08, 1884, daughter of JACOB CRABTREE and MARY YEARY.

Notes for ELISHA ROBERT WYNN COX:
Elisha migrated from Lee County Virginia in January 1850 and settled in Eastern Kentucky. He enlisted in the original 7th Ky. Union Army August 19, 1861, and reported for duty Sept. 22, 1861. as a Musician/Private. He was discharged a First Seargeant Oct. 5, 1864 at Louisville Ky. After serving his 3 year enlistment in which he saw action many times including the siege of Vicksburg Mississippi.

Since many of the settlers in Eastern Ky came from Lee County Va. they wanted a Lee County Ky. So eventually they took parts of all the adjoining County's and formed Lee County as we know it today.
Elsiha was the head surveyor of Lee County and is mentioned in many of the historical documents and publications of Lee County Ky.
Elisha is buried in Clay City Ky near his second wife Mary, his first wife Susan Pittman the mother of all the children is buried at Hopewell Ky on the hill above

Beattyville Ky just off old route 52.

Elisha is buried at Clay City Ky. in the Eaton Cemetary on Wells Street.

I have Elisha's Civil War History but i have'nt decided to enter it here yet since it is about 10 pages.

Winfred Tipton 1/17/97

Notes for SUSAN JANE PITMAN:
Susan Pitman was the mother of all the Cox children and died at age 49, she is buried at Hopewell Ky in Lee County just off old route 52 on the mountain above Beattyville Ky.
1850 Census shows her as 19 years making her born in 1831, but her tombstone shows 1833.
Some records show her mother as Naomi, census shows Norma, whichever it is believed that she was either half or full blooded indian.

Notes for MARY WYNN CRABTREE:
Mary was the 2nd wife of E.R.W. Cox and they had no children.
The 1880 Lee Co. Ky. Census shows Mary (Polly) Yeary-Crabtree living with her daughter in law, Mary W. Crabtree, age 44, and 2 grandsons Granvil P. Crabtree, age 16, and Horis G. Crabtree, age 7.(Harris Jordan Crabtree).

These were the sons of William Price, & Mary J. Horn-Crabtree.
This was Mary Pollys daughter not daughter in law as Mary W. was her her daughter.
I still cannot find anything to indicate that she was ever married prior to E. R. W. Cox..

She is buried at the Eaton Cemetery in Clay City Ky about 30-40 yards from Elisha R. W. Cox.

According to relatives she was not well liked by the children so it appears that she had Elisha buried in Clay City far from his 1st wife Susan Jane Pitman who is buried at Hopewell Ky, when she died the family buried her across the graveyard from Elisha with a simple stone concealed by a bush, and nothing on it except "Mary W Cox".
This is my opinion since i knew that she was not well liked by the children..

Children of ELISHA COX and SUSAN PITMAN are:

List of Tories and Quakers in the Upper New River Area, ca. 1780

This list is contained in the Lyman Draper Papers, and is undated. It is presumably a list of men in what became Grayson County in 1792 accused of being Tories or refusing to take the oath of alliegance to the Commonwealth of Virginia. Quakers were included on this list because they refused to take oaths of any kind, and were thus suspect in the eyes of Montgomery County Officials.
